Congress Extends Nixon's Economic Control Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress sent President Nixon legislation Tuesday to extend his economic-control powers after cutting through a last-minute snag.

Despite the clearing of this obstacle, hopes for starting a year-end adjournment on Wednesday remained clouded because of an unresolved dispute in the Senate over foreign aid.

The economic-controls bill which passed both chambers by voice vote would extend the President's broad powers over wages, prices and rents through April 30, the full term asked by Nixon.

It would provide also for retroactive payment of wage increases agreed to prior to the wage-price freeze. The conditions attached are expected to release most of the wage boosts frozen during the 90-day period. Nixon had opposed this section of the bill, wanting the issue to be settled by the Pay Board, but he is expected to sign the measure.

Still standing in the way of adjournment were disputes over money measures.

The Senate and House were working toward agreement on a stopgap resolution to finance the foreign-aid program until Congress convenes next year.

But Senate proponents of a deleted section calling for an end to the Southeast Asian conflict in six months may debate the issue at length.

Leaders planned for final action Wednesday on appropriations for the Defense Department and the District of Columbia.

The Senate passed Tuesday by voice vote a compromise election reform bill on which the House is not expected to act before January.

PUC Authorizes Immediate Hike In Telephone Rates

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Public Utility Commission authorized Tuesday an immediate increase in telephone rates throughout the state, to add about 40 cents per month to the average residential phone bill. The increase was the first granted to Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania in 15 years, the PUC said. The company had sought to boost its annual revenue by $73.8 million, but the PUC limited the hike to $52.6 million.

The PUC's action came on a 3-

Mohawk, Allegheny Airlines Merger Okayed

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — The merger of Mohawk Airlines into Allegheny Airlines received approval Tuesday from stockholders of both firms at simultaneous meetings.

Only the consent of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) and President Nixon now is necessary for completion of the merger, which has a target date of Feb. 1, 1972.

The stockholders approved a takeover by Allegheny that involves an exchange of stock under a formula worked out by company officials several months ago.

Mohawk shareholders, meeting at the Onondaga County Airport in nearby Oriskany, across from company headquarters, voted 77.4 per cent of their 2.9 million common shares in favor of the merger, a spokesman reported.

Allegheny stockholders, gathered at the firm's Arlington, Va., headquarters, voted approval by 73 per cent of the 4.68 million common shares outstanding.

Two-thirds approval was needed in the case of Mohawk, a New York corporation, while only a simple majority was needed for Allegheny, which is incorporated under the laws of Delaware.

The merged corporation will retain the Allegheny name and have a fleet of more than 60 DC-9 and BAC-111 fan-jet aircraft and 41 Convair 580 turboprops.

It will operate in 19 states, Washington, D.C., and Canada, and will be the nation's sixth largest domestic airline in terms of passenger volume.

The two airlines jointly serve 19 cities under their current routes.

SAIGON (AP) — New fighting broke out on Cambodia's northeastern front Tuesday. South Vietnamese troops reported capturing the rubber plantation town of Chup in their cross-border offensive into eastern Cambodia.

On the northeastern front, Cambodian soldiers clashed with North Vietnamese troops near the town of Taing Kau, 48 miles from Phnom Penh.

The Cambodian command said government soldiers fought a 20-minute battle with North Vietnamese elements as Cambodian troops conducted a reconnaissance patrol on the northern outskirts of the town.

There have been persistent field reports that the North Vietnamese intend to overrun Taing Kau and then drive south of the main road junction at Skoun.

The capture of Skoun would give North Vietnamese forces control of almost all northeast Cambodia.

The North Vietnamese now control all of Highway 6 between Taing Kau and Kompong Thom, 70 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

The Cambodian garrison there is completely cut off from the capital and can be supplied only by parachute drops of food, medicine and ammunition.

Farther east, South Vietnamese forces reported capturing without opposition the rubber plantation town of Chup, 35 miles inside Cambodia and 110 miles northwest of Saigon.

Reconnaissance elements fanned out into the 75-square-mile rubber plantation in search of North Vietnamese troops and supply caches.

Although the plantation is used by the enemy as a division-size base for elements of the 7th and 9th North Vietnamese divisions, there has been no significant fighting so far.

One possible reason is that North Vietnamese units are reported maneuvering along the northern edge of the plantation, while South Vietnamese units have been searching along its southern boundary.

It was the first time in nearly a year that the South Vietnamese had established any kind of presence in Chup, the scene of hard fighting during the first allied invasion of Cambodia in May 1970 and again last February.

Six thousand South Vietnamese troops, spearheaded by tanks and armored personnel carriers, are committed to the Chup drive. They are part of a 25,000-man force which invaded eastern Cambodia Nov. 22 in an attempt to disrupt enemy supply lines and prevent a dry-season offensive by North Vietnamese units in South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command reported that the operation received heavy American air support Monday, including about 300 helicopter missions, mostly by gunships.

The Command also reported that a U.S. light observation plane supporting the operation was shot down Sunday and its two crewmen killed. It was the fourth American aircraft shot down over eastern Cambodia in the last five days, with a total of three Americans killed and two wounded.

East Pakistan Government Resigns, Indian Guns Set Fire To Dacca

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pakistani political leader conceded Tuesday that West Pakistan had lost control of the tide of battle in East Pakistan as the guns of India's advancing forces set fire to Dacca. Radio Pakistan said Indian bombs struck the house of the provincial governor, who resigned and sought Red Cross asylum.

In Karachi, heads of the seven political parties that constitute Prime Minister Nurul Amin's United Coalition, said: "The situation at present is that there is no liaison between West and East Pakistan."

They appealed to President Nixon and Communist China's premier, Chou En-lai, "to urgently arrange for practical help to Pakistan" in its war with India.

With fighting reported seven miles from Dacca, the Indian navy said it had given Chittagong a devastating air and sea pounding and set ablaze parts of the city, East Pakistan's most important port.

In New York, Justice Abu Sayeed Chowdhury—head of an unofficial delegation of the Bangla Desh rebels—called the resignation of government officials in Dacca "a great moment of the birth of a new nation." He added: "Dacca has been liberated."

The U.N. Security Council, stymied three times by Soviet vetoes of cease-fire proposals, continued its efforts to act. Britain and France took the initiative in compromise negotiations.

Security Council Seeking Compromise Peace Formula

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Members of the U.N. Security Council engaged in intensive private talks Tuesday in an effort to find a compromise formula for ending the fighting between India and Pakistan.

Britain and France, which had abstained on three cease-fire proposals vetoed by the Soviet Union, took the initiative in the compromise negotiations as the 15-nation council stood by for action.

An afternoon council meeting was delayed to await the outcome of the talks. Diplomatic sources said Britain and France had kept out of the week-long confrontation between the Soviet Union, on the one hand, and the United States and China, on the other, to await what they felt was the appropriate time to act.

Because of the military developments in East Pakistan, they apparently concluded that the time had arrived and stepped into the negotiations with a formula recognizing the "reality" of the situation.

No details were available as to the nature of the new approach beyond the general aims of trying to stop the fighting and assist in the transition to peace. Tuesday's talks were mostly bilateral meetings between members of the council, but also included consultations with representatives of India and Pakistan. There were also some contacts with the delegation from East Pakistan claiming to speak for the Bangla Desh.

Early Tuesday morning, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler summoned reporters to a 1 a.m. briefing in the Azores, where Nixon was conferring with French President Georges Pompidou, to denounce the most recent Soviet veto.

The Soviet Union is a chief military supplier of India, which one State Department spokesman has called the principal aggressor in the outbreak of fighting. Communist China, which Nixon plans to visit next Feb. 21-23, gives much of its military aid to Pakistan.

American officials, it is understood, suspect the Soviet attitude toward the conflict may be motivated by a desire to humiliate mainland China—to demonstrate to the world that China is unable to prevent the military disaster that has overtaken its Pakistani allies in the Eastern, or Bengali, section of Pakistan.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and French President Georges Pompidou climaxed more than nine hours of talks Tuesday by reaching broad agreement to devalue the dollar and, in general, revamp the international monetary system.

Nixon returned to Washington in late afternoon after two days of summit talks with Pompidou at Angra do Heroismo in the Azores Islands.

Nixon told newsmen upon arriving at Andrews Air Force Base, Maryland, that, by agreement with Pompidou, he could not go beyond the formal language of a joint statement in discussing planned monetary reforms.

However, it was clear that the American and French presidents reached an accord that likely would end a prolonged muddle in international money markets—perhaps as early as this coming weekend when finance ministers of the ten richest non-Communist nations meet here.

Nixon introduced Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, a major figure in the negotiations with the French, to welcome them to Washington.

Connally spoke of "a very significant step forward" and added that while "I would not now predict we will settle the matter this weekend," he expects the Nixon-Pompidou agreement to "contribute enormously" to an early solution of Western monetary ills.

Later, a spokesman for Connally said the administration does not plan to seek any congressional approval for anything it plans on the gold issue during the closing days of the 92nd Congress.

"No request for congressional action is contemplated during the present session of Congress," the spokesman quoted Connally as saying. "There is a great deal of negotiating still to be done."

The Nixon-Pompidou statement was the first to formally state that the United States plans to devalue the dollar.

Connally said the statement was purposely vague about details.

However, it is understood that the accord envisions a solution along the following general lines:

—Devaluation of the dollar by perhaps as much as 8 per cent.

—When a firm agreement is reached, the United States will drop the 10 per cent imports surcharge it imposed on Aug. 15, which has been strongly protested by its trading partners.

—The value of the French franc would not be altered—in keeping with that country's steadfast refusal to change the value of its currency.

—West Germany would be expected to revalue its mark upward and an even greater upward revaluation of the Japanese yen would be envisioned.

—Exchange rates of major currencies in world money markets will be allowed to fluctuate over a broader range than at present—a concession by the French who have long favored fixed exchange rates.

—Although Nixon ostensibly flew to the Azores Sunday to consult with Pompidou in advance of the U.S. chief executive's planned 1972 trip to Peking and Moscow, it was clear from the outset that monetary matters would dominate their discussions.

The Nixon-Pompidou statement said France and other member countries of the European Economic Community look to "the imminent opening of negotiations with the United States in order to settle the short-term problem currently pending and to establish the agenda for the examination of fundamental questions in the area of trade."

American officials declined to specify what was meant by the "short-term problem" but one said agricultural trade arrangements were a part of the picture.

Irish Terror Gangs Strike Public Officials' Homes

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Terror gangs struck at the homes of politicians and judges Tuesday in a coordinated assault on public officials. Three persons were hurt and three homes were wrecked by bombs.

The British government made a stern new demand to the Irish republic in the south to stop providing a haven to gunmen of the outlawed Irish Republican Army. The British, in effect, rejected an Irish proposal to bring the U.N. Security Council into the conflict.

The terrorist campaign against public officials was launched Sunday with the slaying of Sen. John Barnhill and the bombing of his home in Strabane, County Tyrone near the border with the Irish republic.

He was the first legislator killed in more than two years of violence and brought Northern Ireland's death toll to 196.

The home of Ulster's only woman senator, Edith Taggart, was attacked Tuesday. She escaped injury but her husband, who tried to grapple with the raiders, was hit on the hip with the butt of a pistol.

The three guerrillas then fled without planting the bomb they had with them.

The residences of three judges and a leading Unionist party politician were also attacked in a half-hour of violence in Belfast's exclusive Malone district.

One attack failed completely when the wife of one judge answered a call at her door. She saw a terrorist with a stocking mask and slammed the door in his face. He fled.

At the other three houses, the pattern was identical. Occupants were ordered out at gunpoint while bombs were planted. The three buildings were all badly damaged.

Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, the British Cabinet minister with direct responsibility for Northern Ireland, had long talks with Prime Minister Brian Faulkner and his Cabinet as well as top security officers on ways of stepping up the battle against the terrorists.

Most made plain to Maudling their belief that a solution lies south of the border in the Irish republic.

The British demand for action against terrorists by the Irish republic was presented to Prime Minister Jack Lynch in Dublin by Ambassador Sir John Peck.

Freed Americans Express Amazement At Moon Landings

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP) — An energetic young woman, showing few signs of her ordeal, and an Army civilian employee expressed wonderment Tuesday at U.S. technological advances during their imprisonment by the Chinese Communists.

"Have you put any men on the moon yet?" Mary Ann Harbert asked during the 27-hour, 10,000-mile flight that brought her and Richard G. Fecteau to the United States following their release Monday in Hong Kong by the Chinese Reds.

"I told her yes," said Col. Leonard W. Johnson Jr., commander of the 9th Aeromedical Evacuation Group in Hong Kong at Clark Air Base in the Philippines. He described the American space program which has put eight men on the moon. Johnson, who accompanied them half-way around the world, said Miss Harbert told him "I really don't know, I hadn't heard about it. Many people in China don't know that. The last thing we knew about space was that Russia had something circling the moon."

The two Americans checked into the Valley Forge Military Hospital, about 20 miles northwest of here, then fell exhausted into their first sleep in freedom. "I feel great," said Miss Harbert, 25, who came home in time for a Christmastime birthday celebration. She had been held nearly four years following capture on a yacht off the mainland in 1968.

"It was a fine trip and I'm glad to be home," she said. Fecteau, of Lynn, Mass., said he was "very happy" after alighting from a helicopter on the grounds of the hospital. Then he remained silent over his long ordeal.

Fecteau spent 19 years in prison, mostly in solitary. Doctors delayed a physical examination until Wednesday. They said the two were tired but were "in very good physical condition."

Over the Pacific, after leaving Honolulu where the plane crew bought her an orchid, Miss Harbert placed a telephone call to her parents.

New Explorer Post Will Stress Social Careers

Another career-related Explorer post will be formed Thursday evening at Warren's United Methodist Church when high school students interested in a social worker career meet with Roger Davis, adviser for the group.

Davis said Tuesday that the members will determine which direction the post will go in. "Social work is a broad subject," he said. "The approaches that can be taken are endless in their variation."

Lecture material, combined with some volunteer work with social service agencies in the area, will probably take up much of the post's time. Davis admitted.

"We want to give them some real experience in the career area," he added.

Those that exhibit an interest in social work will be introduced

'Free Angela' Buttons Okayed By Board

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The wearing of "Free Angela" buttons by city bus drivers was upheld by a board of arbitration in a decision announced Tuesday. But at the same time the bus drivers were criticized for staging a wildcat strike over the issue.

The dispute halted bus service on a number of Port Authority Transit lines between August 9 and 16, but the three-man board ruled that the drivers were eligible for only two days' back pay—the days they were suspended for wearing the button while PAT had no dress code prohibiting the half-dollar sized discs.

The board made no pay awards for the other days, saying the drivers should have used grievance channels within their contract before walking off their jobs.

Along with the board's rulings were a specification that PAT prepare a uniform dress code within the next 30 days and that the code should be approved by the board.

The "Free Angela" button refers to black militant Angela Davis, who currently is awaiting trial on charges she was involved in a plot that resulted in the death of a California judge.

Seven Seas, a marine park owned by Arlington, Tex., is expected to draw $700,000 tourist dollars annually.

Must Be Aggressive

While Pennsylvania is content to encourage tourism through media advertising and publicity, the bordering state of West Virginia is taking a more positive approach. They are not only telling persons from the Pittsburgh, Cleveland, and other areas from which Kinzua Country draws most of its "trade" why they should come to West Virginia, they are making sure that the facilities to please them will be there.

An example of the West Virginia approach is the recently announced opening of the ski area at Canaan Valley State Park, a $3 million complex constructed and placed in operation completely with state funding. A project that outshines even the past efforts of this state which has been building rental cabins, swimming pools, and 18-hole golf courses at many of its state parks for some time now.

Located near Davis, West Virginia, the highest incorporated town east of the Mississippi River, the new ski resort boasts that it is surrounded by mountains reaching a height of 4,800 feet above sea level which provide an 845-foot vertical drop for the skiers pleasure.

While an average snowfall of 120 to 140 inches is normal in the Canaan vicinity, snowmaking machines keep the slopes in tiptop shape during periods of low precipitation. It is expected the slopes will be useful three months out of the year.

But the state is not overlooking the area's summer potential either. Campgrounds, rental cabins, an 18-hole golf course and numerous facilities appealing to the summer vacationist have been incorporated in the overall planning.

Apparently, West Virginia is sold to the hilt on the value of tourism. And although Pennsylvania has been claiming that tourism is the state's second largest industry for the past decade, it's obvious our push to get the business is not as aggressive as that of our neighboring state. We wonder if our "penny wise" approach to selling tourism, and accepting the tourist as a worthwhile contributor to our economy, won't turn out to be "pound foolish" in the end.

If tourism is a profitable business, we should be just as aggressive as others in attempting to get our share.

The Almost Almighty $$$$$

By James Reston

WASHINGTON — With his decision to devalue the almost mighty dollar, President Nixon has now agreed to do just about everything he insisted he would never do. And the odd thing is that he hasn't been devalued in the process.

On the contrary, he has made a virtue of inconsistency, and every time he reverses himself, he is cheered for his rubbery flexibility: better a political opportunity than a man of rigid principles.

Ever since Herbert Hoover insisted on being wrong rather than being president, this town has doubted the wisdom of men who paid more attention to past statements than the changing facts, but it is hard to remember any politician who reversed himself as often as Nixon or got so much credit for his switches in the process.

When he came into office, he proclaimed the simple doctrine that the happiness of a nation, like the happiness of a family, depended on a rigid balancing of the budget and then, like Franklin Roosevelt, he planned the biggest peacetime budget deficit in the history of the republic.

From his sad experience as a lowly bureaucrat in the old Office of Price Administration, he denounced the whole idea of the federal government controlling wages and prices, only to introduce the present system of wage and price boards, which is extending federal control even to retail prices.

He used to deplore diplomatic "summitry" and is now flying from summit to summit in a diplomatic grand tour that makes John Foster Dulles look like a stay-at-home. He was unalterably opposed to centralizing power in the White House, and in three years has created the largest and most powerful centralized White House staff in the history of the presidency.

We will pass over Vietnam lightly, but he once led the hawks and is now flying with the doves, slightly to the rear; he was against expanding the war but expanded it in Cambodia and Laos; he was against pulling the troops back into "enclaves" in Vietnam, but has them there now; he rose to power by denouncing those who would negotiate with the Communists and is now leading the way to Peking and Moscow in search of what he calls "a generation of peace."

Not so long ago, he was telling us we had to defend Vietnam, for otherwise nobody would have faith in America's solemn commitments to oppose aggression under the South East Asia Treaty, but now Henry A. Kissinger says India is the aggressor against Pakistan, which is covered by the SEATO treaty, but nobody in the government — and very wisely — is suggesting that the United States should defend the Pakistanis.

Isn't this progress? You bet your devalued dollar it is, and popular too. America doesn't admire politicians who stick with policies that don't work. She dumps cars that don't sell, coaches who don't win, and marriages that don't hum the way they do in the ads, and Nixon got the point.

In a world that is changing as fast as this one, flexibility is not only preferable to consistency, but essential to survival, and it is not hard to imagine what the critics would be saying about the president now if he were still sending the boys into the elephant grass in Viet Nam, still howling against Moscow and trying to encircle a quarter of the human race in China, still leaving the unemployed and the inflation to the free play of the market forces, and still pretending the dollar was as good as gold.

So you have to give him credit for abandoning so many of his old policies, particularly since he had so many bad policies to abandon. And yet, after all this is said, it is scarcely surprising that there is great uneasiness in the country, for after all this tardy scrambling, it is hard to know what's coming next.

As Phil Geyelien has pointed out in the Washington Post, the administration fought the last congressional elections on the law-and-order issue, then virtually dropped it in this year's State of the Union message, and offered instead "A new American Revolution" that was going to hand over "power to the people," plus a legislative domestic program that was first opposed by the Democrats and then virtually abandoned by the administration in favor of the new economic program.

There is, after all, such a thing as being so flexible that you go round in circles, and with half a dozen Democratic presidential candidates spinning in their own orbits, it's no wonder so many people feel a little dizzy.

Maybe in this situation, it is not merely the dollar but the politicians and their principles that have been devalued, and in many ways that's a lot worse.

about the Soviet position but ill-concealed anger at what is held to be the lack of sufficient U.S. pressure on Israel.

Nevertheless, an imminent new round of fighting seems unlikely. Sadat himself told me there were no Soviet forces in the Suez Canal area so they clearly couldn't help a crossing. The president also indicated that Israel still has a decided military edge.

The Arab world is in disarray. And Egypt implies its own peaceable predictions because it is just concluding a deal to have a West European consortium build a pipeline from Suez to Alexandria.

Talk and theatrics seem more warlike than reality in the Middle East right now. This has become more obviously true with the outbreak of the South Asian conflict. With Indochina continuing, one new war at a time is certainly the most this world can bear without blowing itself up.

The United Nations continues debate on the India-Pakistan conflict. —News Item

JIM BISHOP: REPORTER

Santa Skips Skid Row

The city room was a warehouse of desks and worn typewriters, the jangle of phones and shouts, the floor an assortment of galleys and yesterday's sandwiches. "Don't shave," the city editor said. "Me?" I said. He nodded. "I'm going to need a man with a beard," he said.

The city editor was a nervous collier. He ran around the closely bound mass of reporters, rewrite men, photographers, wire services and proof readers herding them toward the corral of the first deadline. His tongue hung out.

I stopped shaving. He told me the assignment. I was to go to the Bowery on Christmas Eve, stay overnight in a flophouse, and write a Christmas Day story on how the bums spent the holiday. Jane Franklin was to get a suite of rooms at the Waldorf-Astoria and write about the rich and Christmas.

At noon I left the office. I wore a torn windbreaker, a stubble of whiskers, faded corduroy slacks and a greasy gray fedora. Emil Herman, the best photographer the city editor had, went along for the ride. His pictures had to be in a day early.

It was as cold on the Bowery as on Park Avenue. Dirty slush had been tossed in banks to freeze solid. Fresh snow was falling on a sharp wind. It was small and hard on the face. My hands were in my trouser pockets. Emil Herman hid behind a pillar of a bank. "Beg," he said. "Ask for a handout."

You Need a Drink

The men and women coming from the bank looked respectable. I held a hand out. "Please," I said. "I could use a hot cup of coffee." Some looked eyes with me and passed by. Some turned away. A few said: "Buddy, you need another drink." A stout lady said she would call a cop.

I strolled down to the missions. They had steamy windows. I hugged the thin line outside waiting for a bowl of soup. They gave us hot bowls of flour paste. An old man read the Bible aloud. The day was coming, the day of resurrection.

To attain it, you would have to die first. I made friends easily. The sun quit early. A liquor store was brightly lit. A new buddy who was broke walked in to get a bottle of wine. He got it, but he came out with no shoes. We drank and coughed in an alley.

Some of the bums mooch from each other. Others wanted to go to the municipal baths because Christmas was tomorrow, but nobody went. "They make you stand naked and delouse you with powder," one said.

At 10 o'clock everybody was sodden drunk. One, with a floppy overcoat and a safety pin, slept on a pile of snow. Some huddled in doorways. The police from the Elizabeth Street station ordered everybody to move on. No one could.

I paid the clerk at the flophouse 35 cents for a bed. He took me up a stairway. The only light was a red one over a "Fire Exit" sign. The walls of the little rooms went halfway to the ceiling. Four cots to a room. One blanket. No pillow. No sheets.

My hat was over my face. It shut the red light out. Keep everything on including shoes if you need them in the morning. The night was full of moans and sobs. I never heard so many men cry in their sleep. I was out at 6 a.m.

The Bowery bar was held up by lonely men. Whiskey was 10 cents. It was called G.O.G. — Grand Old Garbage. I needed copy. An old man studied the financial page of "The New York Times." I bought him a slug. "Why don't you drink?" he said. "Ulcer," I said, lying.

A Stock Story

"You don't belong here, mister," he said. "You're a cop or something." Maybe, I said, I was a something. I bought four for him and he began to tip to port. He was once a Wall Street broker, he said. Whatever he told me was his stock story, hand polished.

He met a beautiful brunette. He had dates with her. Later, they slept in brocade hotels. He fell in love. Always, she left at the stroke of 10. He proposed marriage. She wept. It could not be. One day he followed the lady. She boarded an Erie Ferry and took a train to Tuxedo Park. The broker learned that she was married and had two children.

She was right. It could not be. He began to drink. His hand was in the till. He lost everything. His one luxury was the financial page of "The New York Times." "A fair story," I said. He smiled roguishly. "Come back this afternoon with a buck and I'll tell you another one." "Merry Christmas," I said. "Merry Christmas to you," he said. "Do yourself a favor. Go back to your bright world. You don't belong here."

THE PENNSYLVANIA STORY

Not A Lazy Year

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG—In terms of production alone, the 1971 version of the State Legislature will probably get high marks in the Commonwealth's history books.

The quality of that high production, of course, is a different matter entirely and that judgment will be more difficult to make and, hence, would take more time. Whether this has been a "good," "bad" or "fair" Legislature is largely a subjective measurement, the results of which will be announced loud and clear at next year's general election.

But in fairness to this year's legislative record it should be pointed out that numerous key bills have been enacted with a host of other important bills waiting in the wings.

So the tag of "lazy" certainly ought not to be hung on the current crew on Capitol Hill, particularly when contrasted to General Assemblies of recent years.

What (for better or for worse!) have been some of the major accomplishments of the 1971 Legislature?

Perhaps the biggest item (and certainly the most controversial) has been the 2.3 percent income tax, Pennsylvania's first ever.

Also on the subject of "firsts" there was the passage of a state lottery and the extension of the right to vote to 18, 19 and 20-year-olds.

Sunday liquor sales were approved along with bills providing non-public school aid, a ban on billboards near federally-financed highways and tougher restrictions on strip-mining.

With 1972 on the horizon, the second half of the current Legislature will see expected action on no-fault auto insurance, legislative reapportionment, off-track betting, drug and alcohol control and home rule charters for local communities.

So it is apparent that the State Representatives and Senators have come to grips with key issues of the day although the quality of their grasp will be judged by the future.

Since many of these bills were sponsored and/or supported by the Shapp Administration, it would appear that a good portion of the credit for this year's legislative action should be due to His Excellency's influence.

As the months on the 1971 calendar flipped by, there has been an apparent thaw in the relationship between Governor Shapp and the Legislature.

This is in noticeable contrast to the frigid picture at the start of this year when the Democratic-controlled Senate embarrassed the new Governor (from the same party, no less!) by refusing to immediately confirm his cabinet.

This was just the start of his problems with the Legislature in his first few months. But as the year rolled along, His Excellency seemed to gain more confidence in himself and in dealings with his fellow Democrats in the House and Senate.

The apparent warming trend between the Executive and Legislative branches should grease the slides for an equally productive 1972 General Assembly.

And considering the fact that it will be a Presidential Election year, this thaw between the Governor and leading members of his own party should indicate a stronger role for His Excellency in the Democratic National Convention in Miami next summer.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — By Jimmy the Greek Snyder's odds, President Nixon is now a 7-to-5 bet to win reelection next year against Sen. Ed Muskie.

This reverses the odds last August when Jimmy rated Muskie a 7-to-5 favorite over Nixon.

Despite Sen. Ted Kennedy's strong showing in the presidential polls, the nation's No. 1 oddsmaker believes he would make a poorer showing against Nixon than would Muskie, Sen. Hubert Humphrey or Sen. Henry Jackson.

Jimmy gives the President a 2-to-1 edge over either Humphrey or Jackson, but a slightly better 5-to-2 advantage over Kennedy.

This surprising assessment is based, in part, on Jimmy's private poll of 700 women between the ages of 30 and 50. His staff asked them only one question: "Would you trust Sen. Ted Kennedy?" A significant 59 per cent responded in the negative.

While others look to such eminent pollsters as George Gallup and Louis Harris for the presidential standings, we have signed up Jimmy the Greek.

In past elections, he has called the shots so accurately that the prestigious Brookings Institution has interviewed him to find out how he does it.

HOW HE DOES IT

Unlike the pollsters, he doesn't measure merely the relative popularity of the presidential prospects. He also inquires into their delegate strength, financial backing, staff organization and other political assets and liabilities.

He surveys professional politicians and political writers in all 50 states. But he keeps a special watch on two pivotal states, Ohio and Illinois. Last July, he found Nixon running 10 per cent behind Muskie in both states. Now the President has pulled 2 per cent ahead of Muskie.

The President, incidentally, watches the same two states. He has made five trips to Illinois, has scheduled three more.

Jimmy has also made an intensive survey of the political pros in the two primary states, New Hampshire and Florida. He found from some 400 key phone calls that Muskie is "safely ahead" of his nearest Democratic rivals in both states.

Here are the political odds today, as Jimmy the Greek has carefully calculated them:

JIMMY'S ODDS

Who will win the Democratic presidential nomination? Sen. Ed Muskie, 3-5; Sen. Hubert Humphrey, 4-1; Sen. Henry Jackson, 5-1; Sen. Ted Kennedy, 20-1; Sen. George McGovern, 20-1; Mayor John Lindsay, 50-1; Rep. Wilbur Mills, 200-1; Eugene McCarthy, 200-1; Sen. Vance Hartke, 500-1; Mayor Sam Yorty, 500-1. The chances that a dark horse, not mentioned here, will win the nomination are 50 to 1.

Who will be the Democratic vice presidential nominee? Sen. Henry Jackson, 8-5; Sen. Ted Kennedy, 4-1; Sen. Walter Mondale, 6-1; Sen. Birch Bayh, 10-1; Sen. George McGovern, 10-1; Mayor John Lindsay, 15-1; dark horse, 6-1.

Who will win the Republican presidential nomination? President Nixon, 1-20; Gov. Ronald Reagan, 20-1; Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, 50-1; Sen. Mark Hatfield, 200-1; Sen. Charles Percy, 200-1; Rep. Paul McCloskey, 500-1; Rep. John Ashbrook, 500-1; dark horse, 50-1.

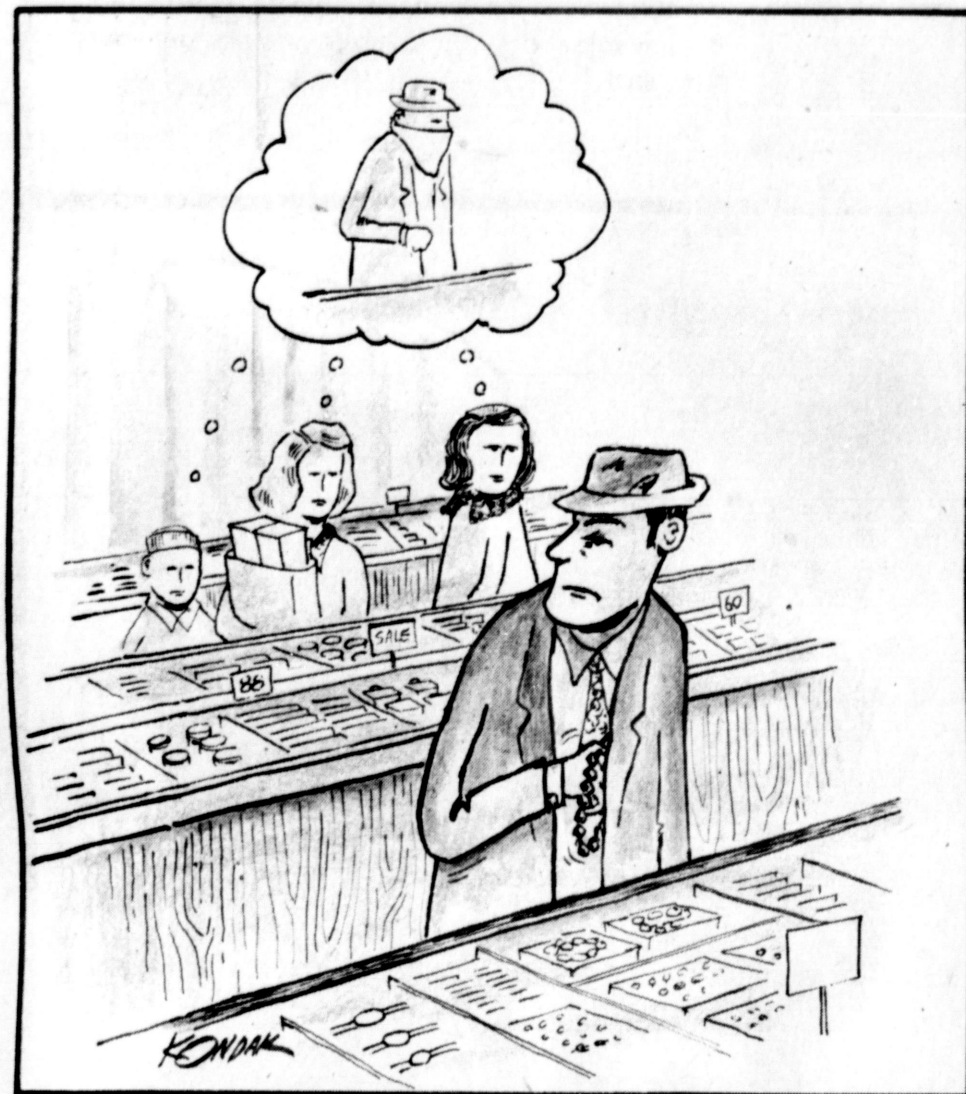

Who will be President Nixon's running mate? Vice Pres. Spiro Agnew, 1-2; Treasury Sec. John Connally, 2-1; dark horse, 20-1.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES

Mobster Rule? — A secret report from the U.S. consulate in Nassau warns that American racketeers "may gain a hold over the Bahamas government.... Pressure has increased on its leaders to accept assistance from criminal sources seeking to establish their operations here.... Recently there has been evidence suggesting that (government) leaders are getting criminal financing and are playing politics with security at the casinos, thereby undermining the confidence of U.S. enforcement agencies on which U.S.-Bahamian cooperation depends to counter organized crime."

Advice and Dissent — Environmental Protection Administrator Bill Ruckelshaus has a Youth Advisory Board to give him the young folks' viewpoint on ecology and related matters. The youth board, in turn, has sought the advice of the chief lobbyist for Proctor and Gamble, whose phosphate detergents are a major cause of water pollution. He is Bryce Harlow, who used to be President Nixon's chief lobbyist. Spokesman John Shiner took pains to explain to us that the youth board merely wanted to hear what Harlow, representing the phosphate polluters, thought about ecology.

Mills' Methods — Ignore House Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills's announcement that he has lost interest in the White House. Mills is running just as hard as ever. At the time he made his announcement of his un-candidacy, he was preparing to speak in Texas, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Colorado, and Wyoming. This is unusual behavior for a man who says he has neither the time nor the money to run for the White House.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS:

One War At A Time Is Enough

By C.L. Sulzberger

CAIRO—The India-Pakistan war came as a political blow to Egypt. It is not simply distressing that fighting should erupt between Cairo's special non-aligned friend and another Moslem land. But the conflict also seemed to damage Egypt's tactic to regain control of the Sinai Peninsula from Israeli occupation.

There had been signs that President Anwar El-Sadat was seeking a peaceful solution despite his tough speeches, his alert to Egyptian forces and the imposition of a gloomy dim-out in Cairo. To start with, he committed himself to search for an interim solution at indirect talks in New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel. Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco of the United States was to have served as messenger from Egyptian to Israeli suites and back.

Sadat knew his foreign minister, Mahmoud Riad, opposed any interim solution. He feared a temporary truce line might evolve into a permanent frontier as was the case 23 years ago after the first Arab-Israeli war. So the president bypassed his foreign ministry to maintain contact with Washington.

When he was not personally involved in direct talks with U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers or direct correspondence with President Nixon, he used Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, brilliant editor of the newspaper Al Ahram and his close friend, to act as an official channel. Then, this autumn, he appointed his "own Kissinger," Hafez Ismail, to take over the task.

Things had proceeded sufficiently in October for Sadat to name his chief negotiator for the proposed New York talks. This was Murad Ghalib, former ambassador to Moscow and now No. 2 in the foreign ministry. But after eight weeks of waiting and many Washington promises, Israel produced no counterpart to Ghalib.

The Israelis demanded more Phantom jets from the United States and also made it clear they disliked the Oct. 4 speech by Rogers to the United Nations General Assembly, a speech whose skeleton was to serve as the basis for the Waldorf talks. This insisted on continuing the present informal cease-fire and ultimate implementation of the 1967 U.N. resolution on Palestine. The prospect of further contacts faded.

At this point it is evident the Egyptians planned to focus maximum world attention on the Middle East crisis during the scheduled autumn meeting of the U.N. Sadat had appeared to paint himself into a corner by declaring 1971 the critical year of decision, taking military precautions, and hinting he might launch an attack.

The hope, apparently, was that the U.N. would be faced with another and even more frightening Middle East crisis and that, to avoid the fear of war conceivably involving the superpowers, it would summon international action. But here the India-Pakistan war exploded—and with it the carefully arranged scheme to exert new diplomatic pressures by means of jingo talk and cautionary interviews.

The South Asian war attracted world attention so intently to the Indian sub-continent that every other crisis seemed relatively minor. Moreover, it fractured previous diplomatic fronts. It became embarrassing for Egypt to try and choose between neutralist India and coreligionist Pakistan when the former invaded the latter. And while the U.S. desperately sought a cease-fire and troop pullback, the Soviet Union vetoed the idea—although it had been the greatest champion of such a formula in the Middle East four years ago.

The result is obvious gloom here. There is no enthusiasm for the idea of war but there is clamor for the return of Egyptian territory. There is tacit embarrassment

What NOT To Expect From A Better Business Bureau

By SYLVIA PORTER

You are suspicious about a local store's honesty and call your nearest Better Business Bureau for an opinion. You won't get it.

"The bureaus will neither recommend a firm nor deprecate a firm," says H. Bruce Palmer, president of the Council of Better Business Bureaus. "The bureau does not endorse any firm nor does it provide opinions," adds Woodrow Wirsig, president of the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York. "It relates its factual information to consumers who must appraise this information in deciding whether or not to deal with a specific firm."

You are wondering whether Dishwasher A is a superior buy to Dishwasher B, so you call the BBB for a simple comparison of the products. You won't get it.

"The bureaus do not test or appraise products," says Palmer. "They cannot tell you whether appliance B is better than appliance A or not."

You think you have been charged an outrageous price for a repair service and you call the BBB to complain. It won't handle your complaint.

"The bureau does not handle complaints about the PRICE of products or services unless there has been misrepresentation about the price," emphasizes Wirsig.

You feel you have been swindled by a home-improvement outfit and you ask the BBB whether you have grounds for a suit. You won't get any legal guidance.

The Better Business Bureaus do not give legal advice. Nor do they intervene in a case where a consumer complaint is under litigation.

One major reason for the credibility gap between you and the Better Business Bureaus of this nation is your misunderstanding of what the BBBs are, what they are set up to do, what they can be expected and not expected to do.

For instance, says Wirsig, let's assume you have a complaint about a price you've paid and the BB won't agree to handle your complaint.

"I bought a dress for $10.95. I saw the same thing selling on the next block for $7.95. The first merchant wouldn't give me my money back."

You would be told in this case, says Wirsig, that it's your responsibility to find the best buy. "The BBB cannot tell businessmen what to charge for their products."

In brief: the Better Business

Bureaus are non-profit, private organizations, supported by business contributions. Their new national organization — the CBBB — says that the council's "dual mission is to become an effective national self-regulatory force for private enterprise and to demonstrate a sincere and visible concern for consumers."

The bureaus do not have subpoena power.

Unlike the Federal Trade Commission or the state attorney general or the city department of consumer affairs, the BBBs have no law enforcement responsibilities or any punitive clout.

A BBB's power is moral persuasion and publicity. The BBBs work with groups of businessmen and trade associations to develop codes of advertising and selling. They then monitor business compliance with the codes.

They will answer your inquiries about retailers, service firms and others with factual information from their files. While their files have been sharply criticized as inadequate and often inaccurate, the BBBs are making a major effort now to update and upgrade them. Inquiries are the purpose of most phone calls to a BBB. The bureau of metropolitan New York, for instance, is answering close to 150,000 inquiries this year, almost double the number of complaints.

They will try to mediate your complaints when they arise from disagreements in the marketplace — fights with delivery men, for instance, service personnel, file clerks, the like. More than 95 per cent of all consumer complaints fall in this category.

But do not expect a BB to prosecute a swindler for you. It doesn't have the authority, even though it will report a gyp to a law enforcement agency and will try to eliminate the fraud on its own.

Warren County School District pupil personnel services director Frank Christy is rather proud of one piece of predicting he did. In his 1968 report, he projected a 1971-72 secondary school enrollment of 5,194 students; the current figure for 1971-72 is 5,193.

C'mon, Frank; what did you do with that one student?

School board president Melvin Keller, completing his 37th year on the board, knows for sure how long he has been on, for Charles Beck, long time secretary to the board, has one day's seniority on Keller. Beck joined the staff one day before Keller began his first term, in 1934.

The clock on the court house strikes ten! But actually it's only five. It was certainly confusing over the weekend and on Monday, to hear the familiar "bongs," happily sounding every hour on the hour but no where near the correct time. We understand it's to be fixed Thursday.

Keith M. Patchen, who has been in Germany the past 10 years, now a retired Air Force man, is spending the holidays with his mother Carrie Reed of North Warren; his sister, Mrs. Dorothy Brew and family, Warren and his twin brother, Kenneth Patchen and family, Conneaut, Ohio.

Advertising pays. At least that's what Ed Ord, manager of the G.C. Murphy store in Warren seems to think. Ord received a check from an inmate at the Bellefont State Prison recently for a radio Murphy's advertised in this newspaper some weeks ago.

Since the shopper, in this case, can't stop at the store and pick up his radio, Ord says he'll send one to him as soon as a new shipment comes in.

Billionaire's Life Style Changes After Plane Crash

By CHARLIE EVANS

(Charlie Evans is an investigative reporter with the Houston Chronicle.)

LOS ANGELES —The life style of eccentric billionaire Howard Hughes took an abrupt turn from playboy to a hermit-like existence a few years after the third and most serious of his three major plane crashes.

While the general public was baffled by his sudden change, Noah Dietrich, who for 32 years was chief aide in the operation of the vast Hughes empire, says he began noticing his boss becoming more withdrawn for two years before he cut himself off from the world.

The extent of the Hughes phobia for privacy, however, has caused Dietrich to search for a reason, and he believes now that the effects of brain damage suffered in the plane crashes is mainly responsible for the Hughes seclusion.

The first of the crashes was in 1928 when Hughes was filming "Hell's Angels" and was the result of an impetuous decision to fly one of the World War I planes which Hughes had refurbished to insure authentic background for the film.

Dietrich said Hughes wanted a pilot to fly at 300 feet, over the cameras and, while staying within range of the camera, make a steep bank. The pilots explained that the plane would slip and lose altitude and possibly crash from that height.

Dietrich said Hughes stalked to one of the planes, took off and went through the maneuver. When he banked the craft it did lose altitude and crashed. Dietrich said the left cheekbone of Hughes' face was crushed so badly doctors were unable to perform the necessary surgery to restore it, though for several years the disfigurement was not too noticeable. In later years, the side of the face appeared somewhat sunken in, he said.

The second crash was in 1943 when he was testing a plane the U.S. Corps of Engineers was interested in for rescue purposes. Dietrich said Hughes made a bad landing on Lake Mead (near Las Vegas). One wing tore off two of the observers aboard were killed and Hughes was knocked unconscious.

"They did get him out of the plane before it sank," said Dietrich. "He suffered only cuts and bruises other than being knocked unconscious for about 12 hours."

The third and most serious of the plane crashes was in the summer of 1946 when an experimental photographic reconnaissance plane he was piloting crashed on its maiden flight on Whittier blvd. in Los Angeles.

"It was the first test of a twin motor with double rotating, counter-rotating propellers," recalled Dietrich. "There was a malfunction with the control and he couldn't steer the craft back to the Hughes Aircraft runway."

"So he thought in terms of trying to make one of the fairways at the Los Angeles Country Club. He didn't make it and the landing gear tore into one house and sheared off a wing before crashing in the yard of another house. The house was destroyed but the lone occupant was rescued."

"He was alive, but semi-conscious and as he tried to get out he burned all the skin off the inside of his left hand. He has never had surgery on that. It ended his golfing, and his hand has been partially closed since."

Hughes dropped to the ground and lay there moaning when a Marine who was visiting nearby rushed up and pulled him from under the craft.

Even though he was so seriously injured that his life was despaired of, Hughes summoned his physician to his bedside and asked if there was a chance he would live. He said he wanted to give his theory as to what caused the crash so that the Army would have the information. He explained what he thought caused the malfunction and added: "I don't want this to happen to somebody else."

His chest and left lung were crushed, his collarbone fractured, 12 ribs were broken, and he suffered head injuries to an extent that he was unconscious or semi-conscious for more than 24 hours.

Dietrich said he heard of the crash while en route from New York to Houston. He changed plans and flew to Los Angeles. When he arrived, Hughes' aunt was at the hospital and told Dietrich that Howard would not allow her to come into the room.

Dietrich said he sent a note to Hughes by a nurse and explained that his aunt wanted to just step inside and speak to him and assured Hughes that she would not stay but a minute.

A note came back with one word: "No."

Guards were stationed outside the hospital door and no one, other than doctors and nurses were admitted.

While in the hospital for 37 days, his inventive mind was still at work. The hospital bed was not to his liking, so he designed a new one and instructed his plant to build it. The result was a bed built in six sections and operated by 30 electric motors. Push button adjustments helped him ease his pain considerably during his hospital stay.

Hughes, in a show of gratitude, had Dietrich locate the Marine who pulled him from the crash. He was told that after he completed his hitch in the Marine Corps that Hughes would finance him in any business he chose. In the meantime, Dietrich said, Hughes sent the Marine $200 a month.

Another indication that Hughes may be fearful of presenting a confused picture of himself, if he made a personal appearance, is reflected in the statement of Nevada Gov. Mike O'Callaghan.

The new governor of Nevada is insisting that Hughes either appear in person or give unmistakable proof that those administering his $300 million Nevada operations are, in fact, acting for him.

Several weeks ago O'Callaghan was handed a letter, purportedly from Hughes sent from his Bahaman Island retreat, chiding the state administration for its delay in granting applications for reorganization of the Hughes administrative forces in Nevada.

Refusing to accept the letter as genuine, O'Callaghan said the letter was given to him by two men who said they were doctors on Hughes' staff.

Said O'Callaghan: "I am told he is in excellent health, but that it would be traumatic for him to see anybody."

This conforms to Dietrich's theory as to why Hughes refused to appear at the TWA hearing.

Dietrich said Hughes, a short time after the third crash, developed a passion for secrecy and anonymity.

"Look Noah," he quoted Hughes as saying, "so many rich guys are getting knocked off, I am going to establish a reputation for not carrying any money whatever."

After that, there were times he even borrowed change to make a telephone call and gave IOU's to cab drivers—when he used them.

NOAH DIETRICH, former executive vice president of Hughes Tool Co. and chief aide and confidant to Howard Hughes.

Dietrich said Hughes told him: "If I'm ever kidnaped, don't you pay any ransom."

"Wait a minute, Howard," Dietrich replied. "Suppose that you become convinced that your kidnapers are going to kill you if I don't pay?" Hughes said, "In that case I will put down at the bottom PDQ (Pretty Damn Quick). Otherwise don't pay any money."

Dietrich says that Hughes also had a phobia about being bugged.

"It stemmed from the fact that he was very secretive anyway and then when we were in Washington during the Congressional investigation into the merits of the huge wooden plane he designed and built, we learned that the telephone in both his room at the Carlton Hotel and mine at the Mayflower had been bugged," says Dietrich.

"That stimulated his desire to avoid being bugged and, as a result, he acquired 24 Chevrolets and hired 24 Mormon drivers. He carried on much of his business with conferences in automobiles—seldom went to his offices—and he felt that Mormons were less apt to repeat things or talk about him or his activities."

"By using the 24 cars he figured if anyone was going to bug his automobile, they would have to bug all 24 of them."

"He would spot those cars around town by telephone and in the morning he would say I want a car at some location. Then he would trade cars five or six times a day. The drivers of the cars he didn't use would stay at their appointed location till the end of the day, then go back to the office."

He was obsessed with keeping everything around the office secret, Dietrich said, to the point that when Dietrich retired in 1957, his office door was locked and sealed with masking tape. "The door has remained sealed to this day," he added, "except for the occasion when I went there, accompanied by Hughes personnel, just to get my personal belongings out of the office."

Another facet of the Hughes penchant for secrecy that has caught the attention of Dietrich and others in the Hughes organization is that the only people believed to see the recluse are five male secretaries-attendants.

They are Mormons, or said to be. Dietrich said his former boss favors Mormons because they are reliable and because they don't smoke or drink.

At the elite corps of male companions who serve as a conduit between Hughes and his top reliable executives—relaying messages and sometimes handwritten notes—long were unknown. But at a court hearing in Las Vegas in December, 1970, their names came out for the first time when Robert Maheu was fighting his firing as head of the Hughes Nevada operations by the directors of Hughes Tool Co.

The five were Howard Eckersley, Roy Crawford, Lavar Myler, John Holmes and George Drancorn.

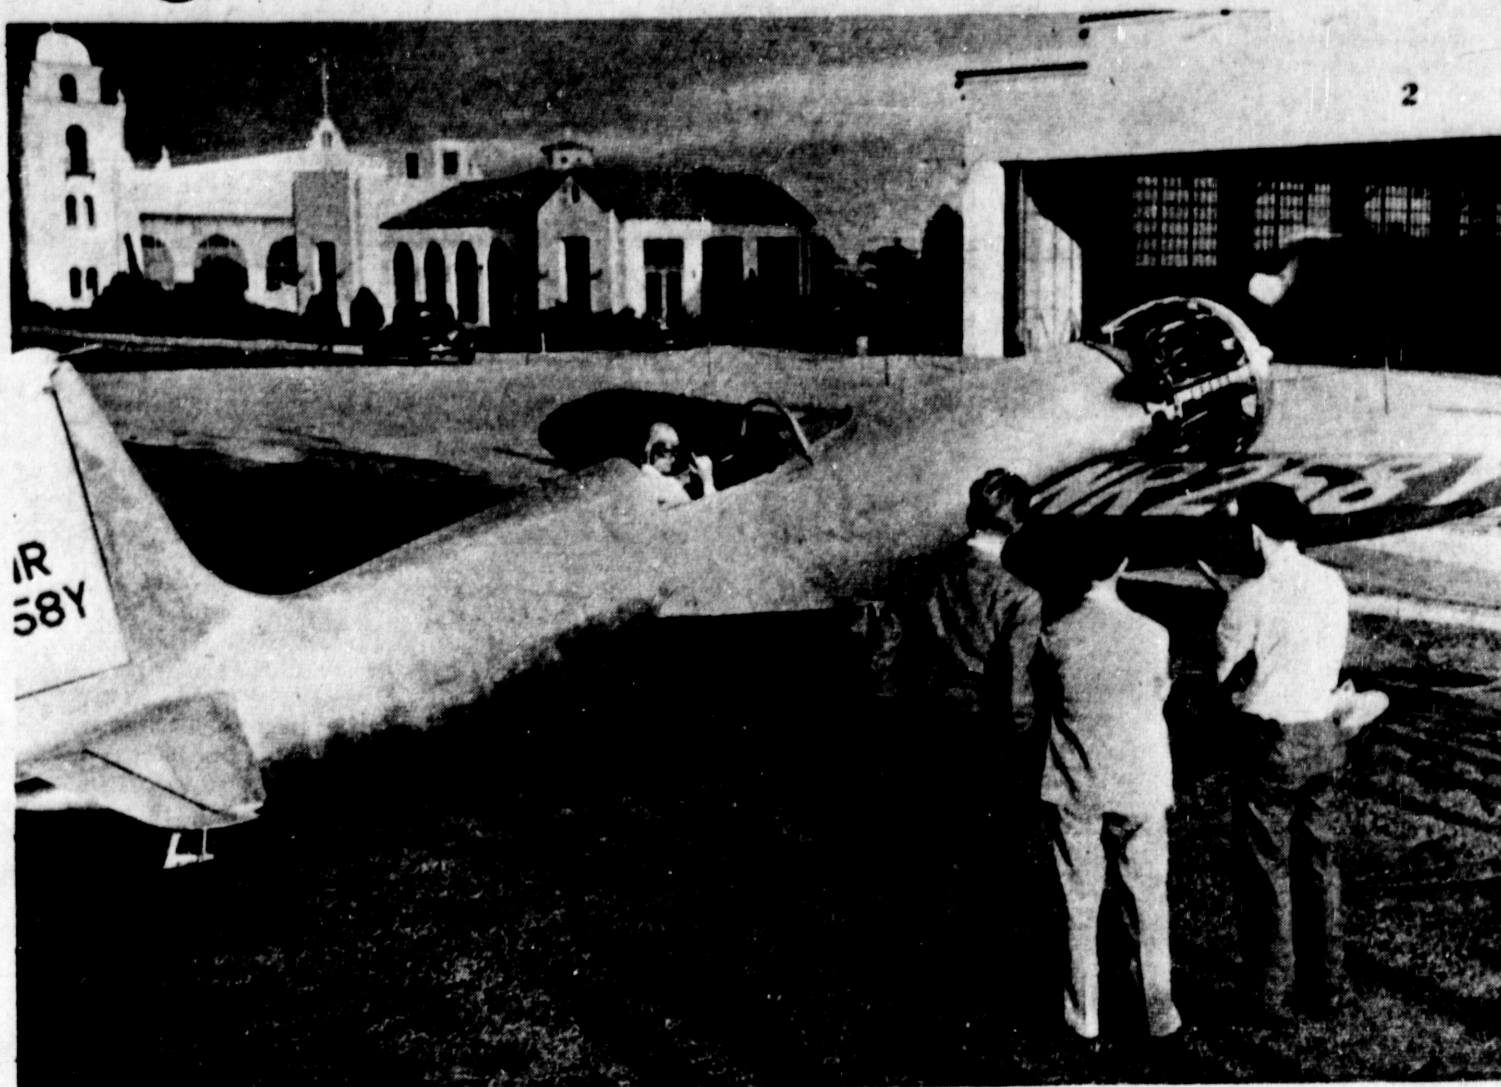

During the 4-year stay of Hughes atop the Desert Inn Hotel in Las Vegas, the five attendants lived in the floor below during their alternating 15 to 20-day tour of duty, then went home for 10 days with their families. The shifts were staggered so that three were on duty at all times.

Hughes has always made it a practice to handle all business

FORMAL CEREMONY

of his empire through aides. Most of the top officials of the companies have never seen Hughes, some have never even talked to him by telephone.

As one Hughes executive of more than 20 years said: "I can get through to the Almighty by dropping to my knees, but I don't know how to get in touch with Howard."

Sharing Hughes' self-imposed exile for 13 years was beautiful brunette Jean Peters, who was well on her way to becoming a film star when she eloped with him in 1957. Though she made occasional trips to their rented Bel Air, Calif., mansion, constantly patrolled by security men, she learned to accept his reclusive way of life.

Four years after Hughes started buying up Las Vegas, Jean Peters left him for good. She filed for divorce in 1970 and since has married a 20th Century-Fox executive.

In the 1930s and early 1940s—years after his divorce from his first wife, the former Ella Rice—the then handsome industrialist-film maker-aviation pioneer was referred to by gossip columnists as a Casanova. His girl friends included Lana Turner, Ida Lupino, Katherine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers, Loretta Young, Ava Gardner, Mitzi Gaynor and Jane Russell, for whom he designed the special half bra for the picture "The Outlaw."

In those days he didn't seek publicity, but he didn't shy from it either.

For the past 20 years he has avoided it with a passion.

Mart Prices Lower In Active Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices closed moderately lower Tuesday despite reports of progress on the international monetary front. Trading was active.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined 3.65 to close at 855.14. Declines on the New York Stock Exchange led advances 10 to 7.

Big Board volume declined to 16.07 million shares from 17.02 million shares Monday.

Brokers said news that President Nixon and France's President Georges Pompidou had agreed to work for devaluation of the dollar and revaluing other currencies appeared to have had no impact on the market.

The losers included steels, motors, rubber issues, aircrafts, rails, airlines, and glamour stocks. Building materials, drugs, and farm implements were higher.

The most-active Big Board issue was Saxon Industries, off 3/4 at 18 1/2 on a volume of 176,100 shares.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks declined 0.20 to 53.99. The American Stock Exchange index dropped .09 to 24.93.

The Associated Press 60-stock average declined .8 to 312.3. Industrials were off 1.1, rails were off .9, and utilities were up .1.

Of the 1,712 issues traded on the Big Board, 828 declined, and 566 advanced. New yearly highs were reached by 47 issues and lows by 10.

Acme Reopens Under Name Of Super Saver

An intense interest in providing ever increasing value to today's consumer has motivated the total discount approach to super market savings. This fact is realistically evidenced at the new Super Saver at 135 Market st., Warren, formerly known as Acme Discount.

The completely remodeled facility, according to Robert E. Giese, store manager, officially opened Tuesday, Dec. 14 under the name "Super Saver Total Discount."

Unlike conventional super markets which offer weekly specials, Super Saver offers rock bottom prices every day of the week, according to officials. They also feature USDA Choice Beef at discount prices, along with the most complete selection of farm-fresh produce and dairy products in northwestern Pennsylvania.

A totally new feature is the new service delicatessen, which offers the customer a wide variety of sausages and cold cuts, sliced to order.

The hundreds of customers who have witnessed the transformation of the store as well as the hundreds who will want to take advantage of the total discount offered, will enjoy the well planned and colorfully attractive display areas at Super Saver. Shoppers will also appreciate the usual courteous and eager to serve personnel.

The familiar and pleasant "Thank you for shopping at Super Saver" now changes to "Thank you for shopping at Super Saver."

The store is open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Wolverines Humble, Ridicule Bulldogs

By TOM SCHULTZ
150-49. Enough said.
What can you say? Sheffield was simply too much for too long for Tidioute to handle.
The game was close for only the first half of the first quarter, from then on it was all Wolverines as they pulled to commanding, then unbelievable and finally "when is it going to stop?" leads.
At the end of the first quarter, the score read Sheffield 26, Tidioute 12. Teams have come back from 14 points before. Eight minutes later as the teams left the court to reorganize and plan second half strategy, Sheffield was on top 53-28. Not insurmountable, but nearing it quickly.

The second half can only be described one way—total destruction of the Bulldogs. Forty-eight points fell through in the third period, then the Wolverines out-did themselves and banged through 49 more in the final period.
Tidioute, while sticking gamely with Sheffield, was obviously just no match. In the second half the Bulldogs could manage just 21 points, seven in the fourth period.

The Wolverines came out in a full court press, challenging the in-bounds pass and doubling double-teaming the man with the ball. This resulted in many turnovers by Tidioute—bad passes, bad dribbling, traveling—and the end result was more points for Sheffield.
Senior Craig Anderson, who is leading the county scorers with a 25 per game average, upped that figure a bit as he poured through 49 points. The big center rammed in 13 in the first period, 20 in the third and eight in each of the other two quarters.
Scott Steffan, drawing a starting assignment, contributed 20. Rick McClellan added 17 and Curt Bowley came off the bench to score 16.

Nine players in all scored for the Wolverines as Head Coach Rod Vashaw emptied the bench in the second half. Vashaw answered the disturbing question of what to do when the score gets so out of hand thusly: "We didn't run the score up, we just scored a lot."
His meaning was, and a point to ponder, should the coach let his players go out and score at will, or should he instruct them to just hold on to the ball and stall, going against everything they have been taught in practice? That's the food for thought at another time.
The 150 points unofficially establish a new school scoring record, bettering the 133 scored several seasons ago. Bowley had the honor of getting the 133 and 134 points with a pair of free throws with only 2:02 remaining to play.

Tidioute, realizing that the Wolverines were going for the record, went into a stall with a little over two minutes to play, but Kevin Weigel committed an intentional foul so Sheffield could get the ball back. It worked as Bowley drove the middle, was fouled and converted.
Tidioute Coach Paul Ludwig said earlier in the week that he was working on a special defense for Anderson. It materialized with John McGraw, at 5-10, guarding the 6-3 Wolverine center and getting help from the other two front court players, who were working in a box zone with the guards.

The strategy backfired as Anderson drove to the hoop repeatedly for easy buckets. When he wasn't shooting, the other Wolverines were connecting from all over the court. Although many 20 to 25 foot shots were put up and a fair amount were made by both sides, it would be interesting, and probably quite stunning to count the number of lay-ups taken by both squads and the Bulldogs and Wolverines were able to penetrate the other's defense.

Rick McAfoose had a good evening for Tidioute, hitting for 25 points. He, however, was the only Bulldog to reach double figures—Mark Downey was next with eight.
Sheffield is now 4-1 on the year and will entertain Youngsville Friday evening. The Eagles handed Sheffield its only loss earlier this year 62-58.
Tidioute, on a four game losing streak, will try to regroup its forces before Randolph comes in Friday.
The Sheffield junior varsity also showed a lot of scoring power, demolishing Tidioute's Little Bulldogs, 101-31. Dave Steffan had 28 points, Scott Duell 27 and Terry Moldovan canned 22 for the Wolverines.

ABSORB 80-53 BEATING BY JAMESTOWN

Dragons Lose Early Lead, Fall To Raiders

By DAVID PIRILLO
Judging by the 80-53 loss Warren absorbed last night, it's hard to believe that it once held the upper hand in the first quarter, 12-4, against Jamestown at home.
But it's true. In fact, Warren cannot six straight points from around the key before Jamestown had time to acclimate itself to the surroundings and Warren's zone.
After Dan Phillips slipped in a bucket from the back door on a beautiful assist by Piehuta, Jamestown began to realize that Warren may be for real. Then Piehuta cut toward the basket on two successive give-and-go plays with Young and Warren had the momentum and a nine-point lead.
With a special set-up for hovering Terry Chili, the 6-10 wonder, the Dragons were able to keep the "dipper" from affecting them to any extent in the early minutes.
However, personal fouls were mounting up. Jim Stromdahl, assigned especially to Chili, committed four himself in the opening period. As Coach Dutch Leonard, Jamestown said after the game, "with all those personals, I knew it was only a matter of time before they fell through."

And it was. Midway through the first period, Jamestown began to oppress the Dragons, and the turnovers soared. Warren, committing just 15 all night, had eight in the first eight minutes.
Jamestown was incessantly trying to work the ball to the inside, but Warren wouldn't relent. Finally, Warren fell apart on offense. Down by nine points, after Piehuta's bucket Jamestown, when it wasn't bringing the ball into Chili was flicking in free throws from the stripe.
In the period of just three short minutes, Warren's lead was expunged and Jamestown took a first period lead of five points 21-16. Warren hadn't made a point since Piehuta's last bucket under a Red Raider press. The tally sheet at game's end showed that Warren committed 12 fouls in the first period and Jamestown sank 11 of the benefit points. It was indicative of the entire game—in which Jamestown sank 18 of 27 charity tosses, 15 more than Warren.

"Too many horses," was the way Warren Coach Ed McGlumphy described it in the locker room after the game. He should know after witnessing the Red Raiders widen the lead in the second period on nine more points before Warren recovered and put up its 18th point on Dan Zdarko's five-footer from the side. That was almost an entire period in playing time since Piehuta scored and 24 consecutive visiting points. After Zdarko's bucket, Jamestown still wasn't content, netting eight more tallies unmoored.
Leonard substituted in a few spots, but the Red Raiders were en route to a 45-26 score by intermission, thanks to the eight points by Jim Young and four each by Chili, Mark Edstrom and Tim Grisson, mainly from the inside and drives. Zdarko had all 10 of Warren's second-period points.
McGlumphy inserted some of his regulars in the line-up at the onset of the second half, after giving usual reserves Stromdahl and Dan Phillips a starting berth to combat Jamestown's height with a little muscle and brawn.
It didn't make much difference. Edstrom was foreman of the Raiders working inside in the third period, supervising the 24-point period with nine tallies.
The game was strictly one-sided by this time, so Leonard reached for his bench and substituted indiscriminately in the later moments of the third and practically the entire fourth. Warren's Rob Young tried to give the Dragons a one-horse attack in the final stanza by canning eight points, but the Red Raiders were able to withstand what Young had to offer.

Jamestown took off its ineffective 3-2 zone in the first period, applied a half-court press, reverted to the zone later when it felt the notion and tried a zone trap press and man-to-man before the game was through. Basically, Leonard probed Warren all night in an effort to keep it off balance with his multiple defenses.
On the charts, Warren had just seven less rebounds than Jamestown, 29-22, and had its best offensive rebounding night with 13 sweeps. Turnovers, for Warren, as said, were 15, one more than Jamestown. Warren hit on 25 of 59 shots taken for 42 percent, while Jamestown hooped 31 of 70 for 44 percent.
It was strictly a case of Warren's inexperience and lack of height that escorted it to loss four in five games. Jamestown didn't take more than 10 percent of its shots from beyond 12 feet.
Warren's jayvees were downed, 52-46, by Jamestown's despite the 26 points of Tim Nelson.
Jim Young was the night's game-high scorer with 21, followed by teammate Edstrom with 18 and Warren's Zdarko with as many. With Tim Grisson hitting on 12 points and Chili with 14, Jamestown had four of its five regulars in double figures. Rob Young was Warren's other productive scorer with 12 points.

The Dragons are idle Friday evening and won't be on the court until next Tuesday against Corry, there.

Knights Overcome Ridgway 30-21

RIDGWAY — Dave Van Ord uncorked the bottle, Dick Wadsworth filled the glasses and Paul Brown slammed home the victory toast Tuesday as Eisenhower's wrestlers roared back from a 15-3 early deficit to defeat Ridgway's Elfers 30-21.
The Knights picked up six points grats when Ridgway, with its regular heavyweight injured, first weighed Dick Hyatt in at 180 and then bypassed Kim O'Hara at that weight and sent Hyatt against the more experienced and much heavier Brown, knowing a Ridgway victory was necessary to preserve a tie.
Brown came close enough to a pin for a predicament in the first stanza, then got it on a half-nelson and bar-arm in the second to boost Ike's score from a narrow 24-21 lead to the 30-21 final.
Jay Lindell got Eisenhower even after an opening-match loss with a 6-5 victory in a whirlwind match at 103, but Ridgway grabbed the next three, including a close battle between Bruce Sykes and Ike's Sam Borland at 120 that ended with an abrupt Sykes pin.
Van Ord used a headlock to bring Eisenhower to within 15-9, but the Elfers weren't folding yet. They grabbed wins at 138 and 145 to take a 21-9 lead.
Then came Dick Wadsworth. He piled up a 7-0 lead at 154, including a near-fall, then slapped a pinning cradle on Ken Rukieski at 3:43. Ray Parker followed with a quick escapetakedown combo in the second period at 165 and added a riding point for a 4-0 win that cut Ridgway's lead to 21-18 and gave Elker coach Tony Catalano the choice of sending Hyatt against O'Hara or Brown.

They chose Brown, and he chose a half-nelson and bar-arm for the coup de grace at 2:26 after almost getting a pin on a takedown-predicament in the first period.
Eisenhower, now 4-0, next tests its mettle against a team it will have to face again in the Section IV matches. Oil City is at Eisenhower on Friday in a 7:30 p.m. match.

The streak is ended — and are the Knights of Eisenhower ever happy.
Just one player — the steady Mike Driscoll — hit in double figures, but five mates joined him in the bucket-collecting column as the Knights won their first outing of the season with a 49-44 home win over still-winless Cassadaga Valley Tuesday.
Dunbar had said that his squad needed more punch from the remainder of the team, and at the start of the fourth quarter it looked like his search for more scoring was to be in vain, for the visitors had moved from a 10-10 first quarter tie to a 39-33 lead.
Then Driscoll started hitting better than he had all night, the pace of the game picked up, and Rick Driscoll and Loren Abbey contributed five and four points respectively as the Knights surged first to a tie, then widened it to a 16-5 margin in that quarter that ensured the win.

Butch Brill was Cassadaga Valley's high scorer with 10 points. The visitors lost Mike Marsh on fouls midway through that fourth quarter, and his objections brought the Knights another opportunity to gain a point via a technical foul call against him.
The victory was Eisenhower's first in five outings. They have until next Tuesday to savor its sweetness; they'll try then to make it two in a row against Clymer on that date.
Eisenhower's junior varsity fell to the Cassadaga Valley reserves by a 57-39 margin.

CHILI WARMING UP

Jamestown's Terry Chili hovers over the, in this case, diminutive Warren cagers last night in striving for the basket and two points. Gathered around in a small cluster for Warren is Dan (40) Phillips, Jim (32) Stromdahl and Mike (20) Piehuta. Chili's attempt to score was successful and so was Jamestown in downing Warren, 80-53. ## Eagle Grapplers Snare First Win

By RANDY SCALISE
"It feels great to be on the winning side for once," said Youngsville head wrestling coach, Bob Lindsey about his team's first victory of the season Tuesday over Cochran, 29-23.
Lindsey got clutch performances from the ever reliable Albert Moon, Alan Kuzminski, Brad Chapman and Bob Frazier.
Frazier's match was the decider as the 180 pounder decisioned Tom Guckert of Cochran by a 12-3 score, thus clinching Youngsville's first win against two losses.
With the Eagles losing 14-11 going into the 138 pound class, Moon came through with the third win of the year in three matches, keeping him undefeated thus far.
Moon picked up an early takedown, then added a reversal in the second period before cradling Dave Andrews to give Youngsville a lead it never relinquished.
Alan Kuzminski followed Moon with a third-period fall of his own over Paul Johnston at 145 to push the Lindseymen to a 23-14 lead that proved to be insurmountable for the Cardinals.
Cochran attempted to come back as Norm McKinney decisioned Lonny Williams in the 154 division 8-0 to close the Eagles' margin to six.
But Brad Chapman, the other undefeated Eagle, was too much for the Cochran 165-pounder to handle as Chapman rolled to a 9-3 decision.
A call against Frazier that appeared to deny him a reverse during the course of his 180 class match seemed to fire the Eagle up and he went on to record his contest-deciding victory.
In the exhibition fray, the Cardinal's diminutive Steve Strope surprised most of the crowd with a quick takedown and a 1-24 pin.
The 95-pound tilt gave the Eagles more thoughts of despair as Randy Bernarding of Cochran came back from an early two point deficit to record an 8-2 victory.

Paul Sanford picked up an easy six points for the Eagles as he was awarded a forfeit in his 103 division.
Scott Grady and Cardinal Lynn Hart battled to a 3-3 tie in the 112 match to give two points to each team.
Duane Billingsley knotted the score at 8-8 when he picked up a 8-0 win over the Eagles Alan Henry at the 120 pound class.
Joe Morrison couldn't quite come up with a pin for the Eagles but he dominated the entire three periods of his 127 division to pick up a 10-1 win.
Ron Hart, unbeaten last year in dual meets and thus far in 1971-72 was surprised by Youngsville's Mike Chase as he was controlled with ease the first period and he trailed 8-2 going into the second period. But Hart found himself and came back with a 2-48 fall on Chase.
After the Eagles comeback, the heavyweight tilt still held much interest as basketball player turned wrestler John Lysyaz was wrestling his first varsity match. But Victor Hogue remained undefeated with a 41 second pin.

Down by six points in the fading minutes of the game, Gannon called on its bench to pull it through. In came Marcel Arribi and quickly tied the game at 58 apiece by swooshing through three 20-foot bombs.
This was the impetus the Golden Knights needed. Stunned by Arribi's long range, Clarion fell back even further when six more uninterrupted points zinged through the 18-inch oval. Gannon was free and clear from then on in its quest for a 79-68 victory at home.
Glen Sommers was high man for Gannon with 22, while Wilson hit for 19 for the Golden Eagles.

Having consistent veteran Perk Mills on one's bowling team is guaranteed to give the five some a steady average anytime. Tuesday night, though, the Sugar Bowl Pepsi Leaguer went far above the call of duty with a smashing 699 series for Marv's Sterling Service.
Mills, who rolled a 299 some ten years ago, came within one pin of the coveted 700 series mark on single games of 212, 210 and a strong 277. He converted eight after two strikes in the 10th of the final game, leaving just one spare in the ninth as a strikeless frame. The evening started out well with a four-strike 212, got better when he strung four and added two more en route to the 210, and set the entire alley agog as he soared to his closing effort.
The feat eclipsed Mildred Swanson's 216-576 on the same lanes and Bud Proud's 258-639 at Riverside.

Youngsville Drops Fourth To Corry

Unaccustomed to losing over the past three or four years in basketball, Youngsville is finding it difficult to adjust. But it must. Last night in Corry, the Eagles were man-handled by a much bigger and talented club in the Corry Beavers, 84-48 in Corry.
A despondent Youngsville Coach Bob Kolesar put it this way, "They had too much height. Every starter was over 6-0, and consequently they beat us fiercely on the boards. We had just eight measly offensive rebounds, and most of them were in the final period when they didn't mean much." The contest wasn't in much doubt from the onset. The Beavers took a quick 8-2 lead and elasticized it to 18-8 at the end of the period. Youngsville tried to sustain Corry with a man-to-man, but the Beavers were copiously successful in working the ball underneath and in. Steve Moore had eight of the 18 points for Corry. According to Kolesar, the second period was almost an instant replay of the first. Youngsville switched into a zone in the second period, but the Beavers solved that by hitting relentlessly from outside the zone's range.

"Youngsville showed a complete lack of ball-handling skills in the third period," was the way Kolesar described it. How true his simple statement was. The lead expanded to 33 points at the end of this period, and Youngsville might as well have had the bus ready to return home.
The Youngsville jayvees were a little more cheery after the evening in copping a 51-47 decision. Benedict was the Eagles' high scorer with 21 points and John Blum netted 15.

NEW YORK—"Everything seemed to bounce right for us last year," said Tom Landry, "and it kept bouncing right for us from mid-season into the Super Bowl. Then it stopped bouncing."

During that cessation, the Baltimore Colts squirmed past the Dallas cowboys, 16 to 13, by way of a field goal in the final five seconds. No over-enthusiastic writer of deathless prose labeled this one "The Greatest Game Ever Played." That still is the property of the original copyright holders, the Colts and Giants of 1958. No, sirree. Last season's Super Bowl was an unmitigated clinker.

It was packed with freaks, flukes and funnies along with six interceptions and six fumbles. This was not the type of game that coaches single out at seminars as a model of expert play. And no one was more deeply grieved by the Dallas lapse into frustration than the head Cowboy, Landry. He's known so much frustration for the past five years of his ball club's always-a-bridesmaid existence. He's now ready to reach for the gold ring.

"Our whole idea is to get to the Super Bowl," said Landry just before leaving the wreckage of the Giants in Yankee Stadium. "And I think we'll be able to do better this time. Maybe things will bounce right for us all the way to the end."

There seems to be an extra ring of confidence in Landry's voice this year and there is ample justification for it. For the first time in memory Dallas has a quarterback with all the ingredients for greatness, Roger Staubach. And the Cowboys have two overpowering ball carriers now paired in the same backfield, Calvin Hill and Duane Thomas.

"Our regular group doesn't make many mistakes this year," said Landry, offering one of his usual dispassionate analyses. "I think we are better offensively this season than we were last year. Defensively we're good but not quite as great as the team a year ago. When we beat Detroit 5-0 in a chips-down confrontation, that was a super performance. But we stopped being super when we got to the Super Bowl."

The Amalgamated Order Of Armchair Quarterbacks has proliferated ever since television took over the National Football League and a guy could take in a lot of football over this last weekend if his eyeballs could stand the pressure.

There was a video doubleheader on Saturday as the Minnesota Vikings eliminated the Detroit Lions and as the Colts dunked the Miami Dolphins. The next day there were Cowboys-Giants for an in-person survey, followed by the Kansas City Chiefs squeaking past the Oakland Raiders in a video thriller. Monday the Los Angeles Rams held a homecoming party for George Allen and his Washington Redskins.

The two teams that impressed most during this three-day endurance contest were the Cowboys and the Colts. Since these were the same two ball clubs that had it out in the big post-season showdown last January, is someone up there trying to tell us something?

Yet there were significant differences in key areas. Neither team got good quarterbacking in the Super Bowl, Johnny Unitas and Earl Morrall combining for the Colts, and Craig Morton, uncombined and uncoordinated, doing little for the Cowboys. But Unitas was brilliant against the Dolphins last Saturday, nibbling the Miami zone defense to death with short, probing passes. He completed 16 of 19 for 142 yards and sent his runners slashing the Dolphin defenses for huge hunks of real estate. It was a four-star exhibition by the Old Master.

Maybe football fans have watched the creation of the Young Master over the past fortnight. What Staubach did to the Jets and then the Giants is a caution. Cool and absolutely sure of himself this late-blooming Navy officer has now quarterbacked the Texans to six victories in a row and he just keeps getting better and better. He slaughtered the Giants with 10 of 14 passes for 242 yards and three touchdowns. He has also thrown 125 successive passes without being intercepted. "Not only does he improve every week," said Landry, "but he will keep improving. He grows steadily in confidence and the mere fact that we've scored 94 points in our last two games has given our whole team a lift. We have an extra crunch now with Hill and Thomas in the same backfield. They are so big and strong that they are tough to bring down, and they pose a problem to the defense because they can strike inside or outside."

"One thing about Roger that strikes my fancy is the way he is winning the respect of his teammates. The Cowboys have always been a tightly knit bunch just as the Giants were when I played on them. So strong was the bond the Giants had to Charlie Conerly that Y.A. Tittle had trouble breaking through. It has been the same here with Morton and Staubach. Now Roger has been accepted as a leader. He will be a good one."

WIN WOULD STOP RAMS

Steelers Play Spoiler's Role

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers, out of contention for a playoff spot, can become spoilers Sunday with a victory over the playoff hopeful Los Angeles Rams.

The Rams still have a chance of winning the Western Division title in the National Football Conference, but they must defeat the Steelers, and San Francisco would have to lose to Detroit.

"A spoiler role, that's all we have left," said Steeler Coach Chuck Noll at his weekly press luncheon.

The Steelers already have their best record since 1963 with a 6-7 mark and a victory over Los Angeles would give them a .500 record, also something they haven't done since 1963.

Noll squashed reports that quarterback Terry Hanratty is unhappy and wants to be traded because he is a backup to Terry Bradshaw.

Noll called the reports speculation and said the only thing he believes Hanratty is unhappy about is his broken collar bone which will keep him out of Sunday's game.

"Nobody likes to sit on the bench," said Noll. "If they were, I'd be unhappy with them."

Noll has tabbed Bradshaw, who was benched in favor of Hanratty last week against Cincinnati, as his starting quarterback against the Rams.

"He's our quarterback," says Noll, "and he's been our quarterback. It's just that he needed a break last week."

Bradshaw rebuffed a heel against the Bengals, but Noll

No '72 Baseball Team For Washington, Says Kuhn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Tuesday a major league team of Washington 1972 is not possible. But he left open the possibility that a new team will move into the nation's capital in 1973.

"I don't see any prospects for 1972," Kuhn said after meeting with a Washington delegation seeking a new major league franchise. "I think it would be unfair to talk about 1972."

Kuhn headed the high level group representing baseball. It included the American and National League presidents Joe Cronin and Charles Feeney and club executives John Galbreath of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Edmund Fitzgerald of the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Washington delegation included Mayor Walter E. Washington, attorney Paul Porter and Reps. Frank Horton, R-

N.Y., Melvin Price, D-Ill., Joel Broyhill, R-Va., and B.F. Sisk, D-Calif.

House Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., joined the group for lunch.

"We're discussing all aspects of the problem," Kuhn said, mentioning the discussion touched on broadcasting rights, lease arrangements and concessions.

"We do not expect to resolve everything in today's meeting," he said.

Cronin was a little more positive, but, like Kuhn, cautious on details.

"I see nothing but positive action coming out of today's meeting," Cronin said.

Sisk said the double session—the group met again following lunch—was "basically an organizational meeting."

The California congressman denied there is any attempt at "black jacking," organized baseball by threatening its present exemption from anti-trust laws.

"We didn't go out to ... beat anybody over the head, he said. "Baseball recognizes it has certain problems."

"But I'm a baseball fan," he said. "I happen to feel baseball is tremendously good for America."

Kuhn, a lawyer, said, "It comes down to how you finance a baseball team.

"I think there is a potential for a larger equity investment by Washington-area people now than there was before."

Fitzgerald suggested the Washington group should follow the example of Milwaukee in its successful efforts to re-obtain major league baseball.

"They are going to have to get a group and go to all the meetings and stand in the halls, looking through peepholes and waiting to get inside," he said.

Ted The Thumper Talks To Texans

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Ted Williams, saying "I look like a Texas Ranger only from the neck up," made his first appearance in North Texas Tuesday as manager of the transferred American League club and promised no miracle pennant—just hustle.

Williams was introduced by Arlington Mayor Tommy Vandergriff who said "If anybody ever looked like a Texas Ranger, Ted looks the part."

The Thumper replied "Not from the neck down ... I'm out of shape."

Williams, his shirt characteristically open at the collar, said he was "enthusiastic" about coming to Dallas-Fort Worth with the former Washington Senators.

"Enthusiasm has made it possible for some clubs to improve to the point where they eventually become pennant winners," Williams said. "I can guarantee you one thing as manager of the Rangers—you can bet our club will be a hustling club. Never once in Washington could the writers say our club didn't hustle."

Williams said the young Texas Ranger club will "work harder and longer on fundamentals" than any other team he has managed.

"We hope to make a few more trades," he said. "We are always looking for pitching."

He said he hadn't heard whether slugger Frank Howard intended to return.

"Frank realizes he is getting older and heavier," Williams said. "If he could play with less weight than he had last year, he could have a good season."

Williams said losing seasons in his three years as manager made it hard for him to decide how much longer he wanted to stay around as a major league pilot.

"It's fun to manage when you are winning but hard to be on the losing side," he said. "But if I didn't think I was getting to be a better manager I would go back to fishing."

Koufax Now HOF Eligible

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandy Koufax, former star left-handed pitcher for the Los Angeles Dodgers, will be eligible for election into baseball's Hall of Fame next year.

Ballots were distributed to eligible members of the Baseball Writers Association of America this week. To be elected a player must receive 75 per cent of the votes from writers who have been members in the association for at least 10 years.

The BBWA Screening Committee has reduced the number of eligibles to 47. Bobby Richardson, former New York Yankee second baseman, and Roy McMillan, former Cincinnati, Milwaukee and New York Met shortstop, are first-time eligibles along with Koufax.

Koufax, three-time winner of the Cy Young Award with a 2.76 lifetime earned run average, seeks to join Stan Musial, Ted Williams, Jackie Robinson and Bob Feller by making the Hall of Fame on the first try.

Yogi Berra, ex-Yankee catcher, made the ballot for the first time last year but came 28 votes short of the required 270 votes.

The ballots are returnable by Jan. 15, 1972, and the results expected to be announced later in the month.

Virdon Names Morgan Coach, Completes Staff

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Manager Bill Virdon of the Pittsburgh Pirates rounded out his coaching staff Tuesday by naming Joe Morgan to work with infielders.

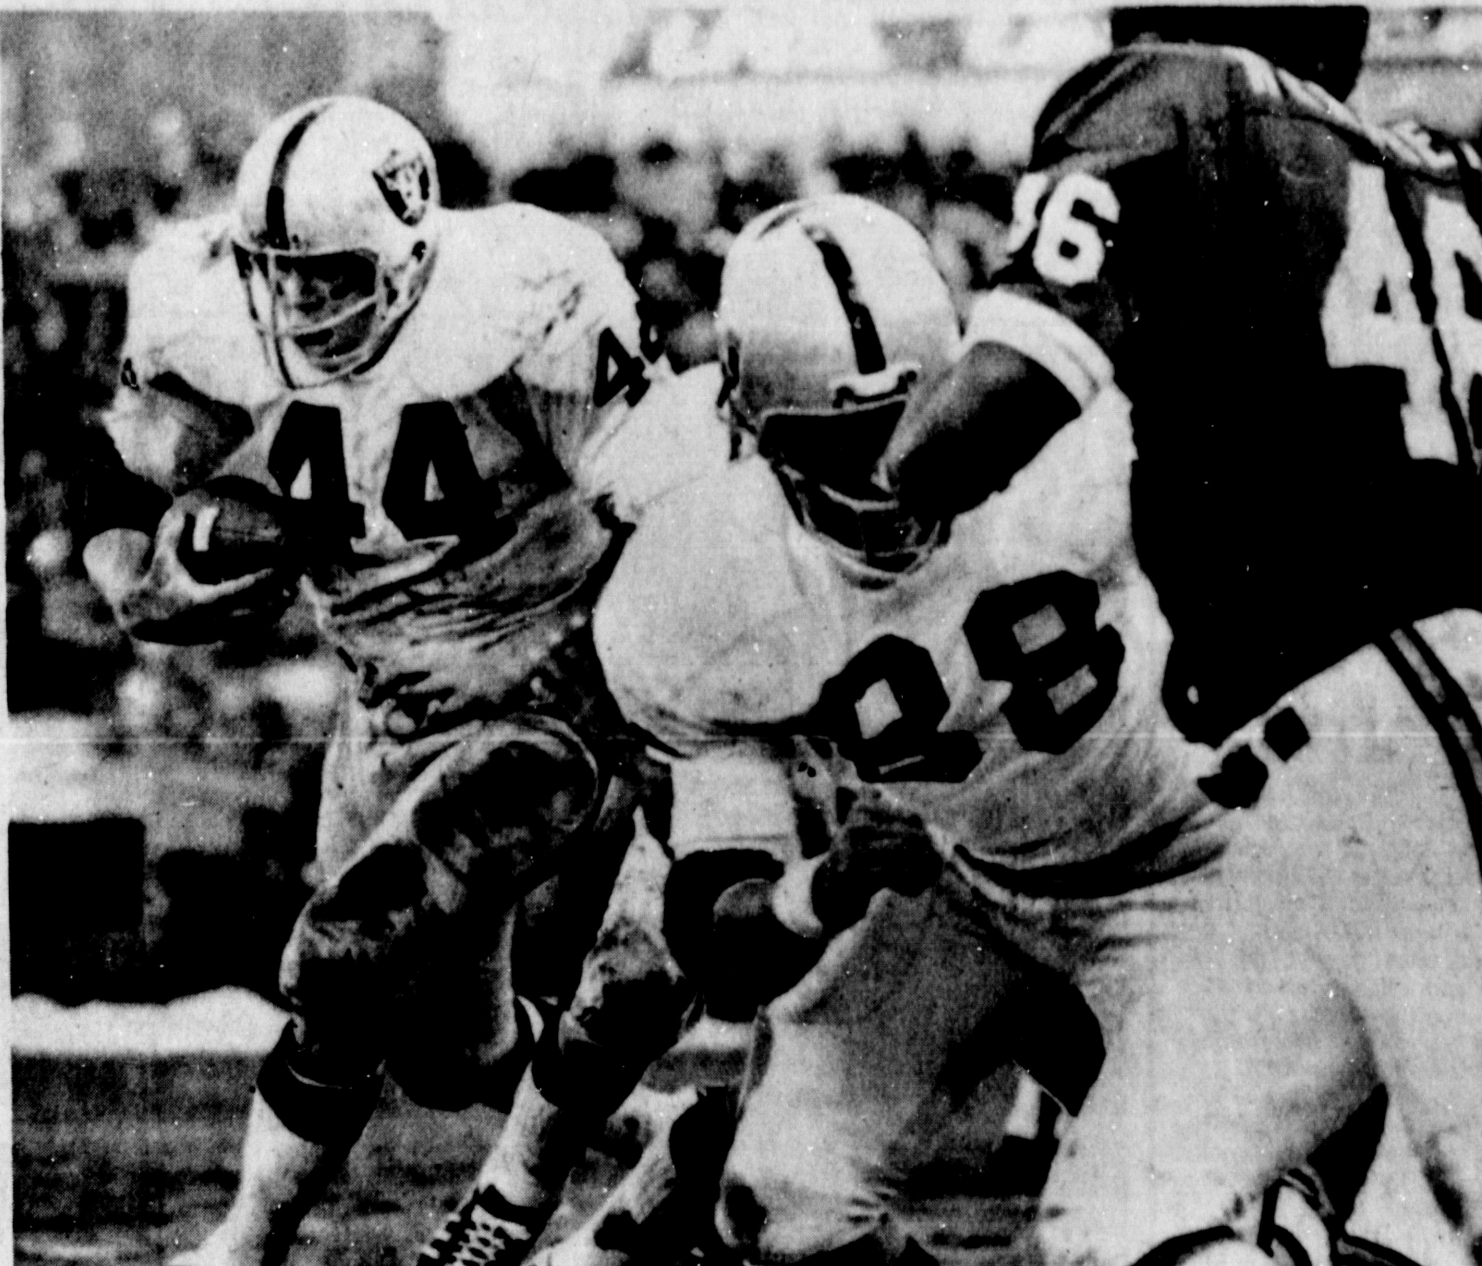

The 41-year-old Morgan, who managed the Pirates' Charleston, W. Va. farm club last season, will also assist Virdon in working with hitters.

A coaching vacancy was created when Virdon, the Pirates' batting coach, was named manager of the club after Danny Murtaugh resigned.

Morgan managed the Charlies to a third-place finish in the International League last season. Before that he coached at Columbus, York and Raleigh.

Morgan, a former third baseman, made it to the majors in 1959, then played with Kansas City, Milwaukee, Cleveland, Philadelphia and St. Louis during his six-year career.

The Pirates have not yet named a manager to succeed Morgan at Charleston.

Oakland Raider halfback Marv (44) Hubbard gallops into the end zone on a two-yard run behind Bob (88) Moore's block on Jim

FIRST-YEAR RECORD SOLID

Erie's 'Hurst Collegians Hot On Court

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — The Mercyhurst basketball team was born this season and you know the bit about learning to walk before learning to run. Don't believe it.

"Most teams figured we would be a sure win on their schedules," says Coach Richard Fox. "You can tell when we beat them. They're embarrassed."

After six games, Mercyhurst is 5-1 and owns victories over such teams as Allegheny and Slippery Rock colleges. Its only loss was to Lock Haven in the first game of the season.

Even Fox is surprised by his team, which is averaging over 100 points a game.

"Before the season began, I figured if we finished with a 12-13 record, I'd be happy. 'I'll still be very happy if we finish 12-13," he says.

Two years ago, Mercyhurst College was an all girls school. It turned co-ed last year and this year has about 500 women and 350 men at the school.

"We aren't interested in big-time basketball," says Fox, last year the coach of Cathedral

Prep Catholic High School in Erie, the PCIA state champion. "We are giving some grants-in-aid to recruit players though."

The Mercyhurst starting lineup consists of four freshmen and a sophomore.

J.C. Carter, a 6-foot-2 forward and a transfer student from Clarion, is the team's leading scorer with 22.6 points a game. He also leads the team in rebounding and assists and "is out best defensive player," Fox says.

Steve Albert, of Pittsburgh, a 6-foot-6 freshman who played on the South Hills Catholic team last year — the team Cathedral High defeated in five overtimes for the PCIA title — is averaging 18 points.

Mike Emmick, a 6-foot-5 freshman from Oil City, is the third leading scorer.

"It's been a real challenge to organize the team," says Fox. "I think you'll find the kids probably think I'm an idiot, demanding the things I do."

"We run disciplined patterns and a man-to-man defense. We practice 2½ hours a day. And we've played eight games in 16 days, so you know we're in shape."

In Erie, Gannon College, where Fox was once an assistant coach, is the team to beat.

When Mercyhurst tried to get on Gannon's basketball schedule, the answer was no.

"They flatly refused," said the 38-year-old Fox. "They figured they had everything to lose and nothing to gain."

"But I feel they'll want to play us in a year or so."

Registration for this season's elementary wrestling program for students in schools which are part of the Beaty-Warren High feeder system will be held from 6 to 7 p.m. on Thursday and Friday of this week, says program director Paul Yourchisin.

The signups will be held in the hall in front of the Beaty gymnasium each night. The program, beginning with practices on Jan. 3, will feature inter-squad matches and a tournament at the end of the year. Selected wrestlers will have an opportunity to participate in the AAU Junior Olympics area tournament.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox traded pitcher Pat Jacquez for centerfielder Jim Qualls in a deal Tuesday with Indianapolis of the American Association and assigned Qualls to the Sox' Tucson club in the Pacific Coast League.

Qualls, former Chicago Cub property, last season batted .253 in 94 games for Indianapolis, an affiliate of the Cincinnati Reds.

Redskins Not Over Hill, Just Driving For Summit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Washington Redskins, the self-styled "Over the Hill Gang," have reached the National Football League playoffs in their first year under Coach George Allen.

They did it by beating the Los Angeles Rams 38-24 in a showdown battle Monday night to gain some revenge for Allen and the ex-Rams on his squad of Easterners.

"I'm an oldtimer and I like it," declared linebacker Jack Pardee, long a Los Angeles stalwart and one of the players Allen acquired after being fired by the Rams last winter.

"Our team doesn't go out there and wait for tomorrow," explained the 35-year-old Pardee, a veteran of 14 professional seasons from Texas A&M.

After the victory in the nationally televised game, Pardee joked with newsmen by saying, "After the first pile-up, I headed for the Rams' bench."

Fired by three touchdown passes from ex-UCLA star Bill Kilmer, the Redskins whipped the Rams on a cool, windy night and insured themselves at least the wild-card playoff spot allotted to the National Football Conference club with the best second-place record.

They still could win the Eastern title but leading Dallas is favored over St. Louis, and it would take a combination of a Dallas loss and a Redskins victory over Cleveland to turn the trick.

Los Angeles can't yet be counted out of the playoffs, but they must win or tie Pittsburgh on Sunday and the San Francisco 49ers lose to Detroit to make it possible.

"The Rams didn't think much of our passing and that's why we went to passes," explained Allen of his attack.

Kilmer hit for scores on pass plays covering 70 and five yards to Roy Jefferson and 32 to Clifton McNeil. "We wanted to take advantage of single coverage so I threw to outside receivers," he explained.

Washington Fills 3rd Playoff Berth

NEW YORK (AP) — The fogies who masquerade as the Washington Redskins clinched a National Football League playoff berth Monday and eliminated either the Los Angeles Rams or San Francisco 49ers.

Washington's nationally televised 38-24 victory over the Rams left them in second place in the Eastern Division of the National Conference with a 9-3-1 record to Dallas' 10-3, but assured the division's secondplace finisher of the NFC's fourth and final playoff spot.

The defeat dropped the Rams into second place in the NFC Western Division at 7-1 behind 8-5 San Francisco. Only the division winner will make the Super Bowl playoffs. The Rams finish next Sunday at Pittsburgh and the 49ers entertain Detroit.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced Monday that the playoffs will get under way on Christmas Day, Dec. 25, with the Minnesota Vikings, champions of the NFC Central Division, hosting either Dallas or Washington. Two games will be played Dec. 25 and two more Dec. 26. They will be televised nationally, but blacked out in the area of the game.

The playoff scheduled: Saturday, Dec. 25 1 p.m., EST-NFC Eastern champion Dallas 10-3 or Washington 9-3-1 at NFC Central champion Minnesota 10-3, CBS-TV.

4 p.m., EST-AFC Eastern champion Baltimore 10-3 or Miami 9-3-1 at AFC Western champion Kansas City 9-3-1, NBC-TV.

Sunday, Dec. 26 1 p.m., EST-AFC second-place qualifier Baltimore 10-3 or Miami 9-3-1 at AFC Central champion Cleveland 8-5, NBC-TV.

4 p.m., EST-NFC second-place qualifier Dallas 10-3 or Washington 9-3-1 at NFC Western champion San Francisco 8-5 or Los Angeles 7-5-1, CBS-TV.

Playoff winners will meet Jan. 2 to determine the rivals in the Super Bowl at New Orleans Jan. 16.

Frazier Earns Top Boxer Honors With Just 1 Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier, winner of The Fight, was named today Fighter of the Year for 1971 by the Boxing Writers Association.

The world heavyweight champion, who also was the group's outstanding fighter in 1969, will receive his second Edward J. Neil Memorial Award. The award is named in honor of the former Associated Press boxing writer who was killed while covering the Spanish Civil War in 1938.

In his only bout in 1971 the 27-year-old Frazier knocked down Muhammad Ali in the 15th round and won a unanimous 15-round decision the night of March 8 in New York's Madison Square Garden.

The fight, in which each man received a guarantee of $2.5 million, was one of the most talked about in years and became known as The Fight.

Frazier's victory over Ali was so big that no other boxer was nominated for the Neil Award.

Frazier is scheduled to return to action with a title defense against Terry Daniels of Dallas Jan. 15 in New Orleans.

The 1970 winner of the Neil Award was world lightweight champion Ken Buchanan of Scotland.

Christmas Gift For Anglers - '72 Fishing License

Looking for a Christmas gift to please the person who has almost everything? The State Fish Commission has a suggestion—a 1972 Pennsylvania fishing license.

More than 1,600 license issuing agents, including all county treasurers and many sporting goods dealers, now have the 1972 licenses on sale, according to Commission spokesmen. Shipments of licenses, supplies, forms, and summary booklets of 1972 laws, rules, regulations, seasons and creel limits, have been completed by the Commission's License Division located in Harrisburg. The issuing of Pennsylvania fishing licenses was transferred by law from the Department of Revenue to the Fish Commission earlier this year.

Fishing licenses are required of all adult persons (with some exceptions) who fish in Pennsylvania, with a 1972 license required starting Jan. 1. The resident license, required of all fishermen over 16 years of age, cost $5 plus an issuing agent's fee of 20 cents. Senior citizen licenses for persons 65 years of age or older cost $2. A nonresident license, required of all anglers from out of state who are 12 years of age or older, costs $9.50. County treasurers and some other license issuing agents also have available a 5-day tourist license for $5. License issuing agents are authorized to collect a 20 cent fee on each license issued.

KEYS RECORD WIN STREAK Play Of Goodrich Pacing Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ask a pro basketball fan the identity of the leading scorer on the Los Angeles Lakers. Chances are you'll hear at least two names—maybe more—before the right answer. It's Gail Goodrich.

At 28, the little guard is playing the game of his life, averaging 26.8 points a game—third best in the National Basketball Association. He is leading the fast break for the Lakers, who have won a record 21 games in succession, and making it impossible for opponents to overplay his backcourt running mate, All-Pro Jerry West.

But no matter how many points he scores, Goodrich's chances of starting in the NBA

All-Star game next month are not good, particularly on a team that annually includes West and Oscar Robertson in the backcourt. Goodrich has made the All-Star team as a reserve once and figures to make it again this year. But he says he doesn't mind not starting.

"Being an All-Star isn't really one of my goals," says the seventh-year pro from UCLA. "I want to play on a championship team. If we do it this year, of course, I'll have to come up with some more goals."

Goodrich's relative obscurity can be traced to his size—he's generously listed in press guides at 6-foot-1 and his style of play.

He doesn't awe opponents, like teammate Wilt Chamberlain, or get rhapsodies from sportswriters, like West. Instead, like a good boxer or a singles hitter in baseball, he probes for a defensive weakness—a team slow to get back on a fast break, a moment's confusion on a guarding switch, a few feet of open space left by teams' double-covering West or sagging inside on Chamberlain. Though he often shoots from close range, his quick accurate left-handed jump shots are seldom blocked.

Globetrotters End Strike

CHICAGO (AP) — The month-long strike of the Harlem Globetrotters has ended, the President of the famed, black, pro-basketball troupe announced Monday.

George N. Gillette Jr. said an agreement "satisfactory to both sides" was reached with the dissident players whose sitdown Nov. 16 at Port Huron, Mich., resulted in cancellation of 27 Trotter games.

A dozen players on the domestic Trotter unit held workouts daily at Port Huron until last Thursday, when weekend talks in Chicago culminated in settlement of the dispute over wages and side benefits.

Gillette declined to reveal terms of the agreement and stressed that a players' committee rather than a union will represent the players in future relations.

Brokenstraw Twp. Supervisors Refute Solid Waste Ordinance

At the regular monthly meeting of the Brokenstraw township supervisors on Monday night, bids were opened on contracts for the supply of road and maintenance materials for 1972 and those submitted by United Refinery, George Bleach Oil Company, Allied Bitumen Company and Brokenstraw Gravel Company were accepted.

Three items for which only one or no bids were received are to be re-advertised. These were for I.D. 1 and I.D. 2 paving and patching materials, 1B, 2B and 3A gravel, and anti-skid materials.

Correspondence was read from the Warren County Solid Waste Authority, consisting of the proposed ordinance on the agreement between county local authorities and the agency, for use of the county landfill site. After lengthy discussion, the supervisors decided they could not accept the ordinance in its present form because of questions relating to item 2, on waste collection.

The challenged phrase refers to "such solid waste materials as may be acceptable to the Authority." The supervisors' joint opinion is that if the Authority is to accept any waste material from Brokenstraw township, it must accept all.

There was also discussion of item 5 in the ordinance, which states that "the boroughs or townships agree to pay the Authority any moneys due to the Authority should the collectors fail to pay."

Supervisor Tracy Crocker commented that it appeared the Authority "wants us to do their business for them." Supervisor George Probst said he felt the licensing of a carrier who could be bonded, would protect both the local authority and the county authority.

The supervisors did sign an agreement with the county commissioners for the purchase lease, for a nominal $1, of Rouse estate land adjoining Wilder Field. The lease is renewable after ten years, and in the event of its discontinuance by either party, all above-ground construction and materials are the township's responsibility to remove. It is intended to use the land for a new township building, although plans are not immediately being made. The location is within the township boundaries. The building presently being used for storage and as a garage is in Youngsville borough.

Tentative approval was given to the 1972 budget. It will be advertised and publicly displayed at a time and place to be announced, prior to its presentation for final adoption

Erie Firm Will Close Down Plant

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Republic Heater Co. has announced plans to close its plant here, idling or relocating some 240 workers, in the second major work setback in this area in a week.

Days ago, Hammermill Paper Co. said it was laying off 60 salaried workers and would continue evaluations toward further work force cutbacks.

In both instances, economic conditions were cited.

Republic, locked in a boiler-makers strike since Oct. 24, said the decision to go out of business here was made in the wake "of continuing financial losses and outmoded facilities."

Wayne Slocum, industrial relations director for Republic, said some provisions would be made to relocate workers to other plants in Dallas, Los Angeles or Portland, Ore.

Republic has been manufacturing gas and electric heaters here for the past 20 years. The company is a division of Pancon Corp.

Hammermill, second only to General Electric in employment here, has a work force of about 2,000.

at the reorganizational meeting on Monday, January 3, 1972. At that meeting also, two newly elected officials will take office — Theodore Bosko as auditor, and Rodney Rowland as supervisor.

It was announced that a feasibility study concerning sewage collection being prepared by Chester Engineers is well under way, and state approval granting matching funds to pay for it has been received. Payment is expected shortly. Also nearing completion is a study by the auditing firm of Coates, Glass, Way and Anderson, summarizing the case of fraudulent conversion of township funds by a paid official, which came to light recently. The report is to be given to the bonding company on January 1, 1972. The amount of indemnity will be announced later.

In other action, the supervisors approved of a letter to be sent jointly with the Warren County Township Supervisors Association, and the Borough of Youngsville, to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Pittsburgh, endorsing the report of Dr. Joseph Breston, of Tech Labs, Bradford, Pa., on the effects of commercial dredging in the Allegheny river at Starbrick. The report indicates that any changes in turbidity and the amount of suspended solids in the water, as a result of operations of General Concrete Products, are insignificant.

The proposed letter supporting continued dredging operations will point out the importance of the operation for the supply of materials for road construction, residential and industrial building, and it will cite the contributions of the company to the county's economy and benevolent agencies, and the continued unrestricted use of the river in Starbrick for fishing and other recreational activities.

Parties To Pick Own Delegates Under New Senate-Adopted Bill

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Senate unanimously adopted Tuesday a bill permitting political parties to establish their own rules governing the selection of delegates to national conventions.

The measure was sent to the governor.

Originally, the bill was designed to require that delegates be committed for two rounds of voting at the conventions. However, the provision dealing with committed delegates was changed in the House as a compromise. Now it leaves the matter to the parties themselves.

The measure was aimed at bringing Pennsylvania into compliance with guidelines set down by the Democratic National Committee.

Party organization leaders had opposed the committed delegate provisions. They wanted uncommitted delegates who could be controlled by party chieftains.

Jamestown Delegation Files Injustice Charges With Council

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — The 10 persons arrested in connection with last summer's Allen Park disturbance were victims of injustice, according to a delegation of about 40 persons who attended Monday night's City Council session.

Employment of secret indictments, police harassment, community indifference and wholesale racism were alleged by those delegation members who spoke to council directly.

Among the charges leveled was the white race hatred of blacks and that city officials don't care about blacks. Racism was attributed to the city police force by the Rev. Ivan Brown, who also charged that much of the crime in the black community goes unheeded and uninvestigated.

The Rev. Ivan George said he hoped for a new era with Chief John Paladino's retirement.

Mayor Stanley N. Lundine met with representatives of the delegation after the council meeting and emphasized the city's willingness to discuss all facets of community relations.

Chief Paladino, whose letter of retirement was read at the council meeting, made no public comment regarding charges leveled at him and his department.

12 Trooper Killers
Now Sought
15 In Altoona

ALTOONA, Pa. (AP) — The search for two suspects in the slaying of a state trooper was redirected to this Blair County city Tuesday following a flurry of police activity when the two were believed seen some 80 miles west of here in Pittsburgh.

A uniformed security guard en route to work on Pittsburgh's North Side before dawn spotted two men he thought fit the descriptions of the fugitives and alerted police.

The car in which the guard said the two were riding was seen a short time later and police gave chase. The car crashed and the occupants fled on foot into a wooded area.

All available police units were called to the scene, but after six hours of searching, police said they decided to call it quits because the abandoned car had been reported stolen from near-by Coraopolis—two days before the murder of state trooper John Valent in Mifflin County.

The car was similar to one of two vehicles stolen in this area shortly after a shootout during which a third suspect in the killing himself was gunned down by police.

"The two cars stolen from the Altoona area the day of the shooting have not been recovered, and we believe they may have been stolen by the suspects," the police spokesman said.

"Even though we've had reports that cars fitting the description of those stolen have been spotted in many different areas," the spokesman continued, "the thrust of our operations continues in and around Altoona."

The search began after Valent picked up three men for questioning and was shot, apparently while driving the trio to the State Police substation at Lewistown, according to police.

A bulletin was issued for Geddes, Knisley and a third man, Charles E. Koons Jr., shortly after Valent was found slumped in his wrecked police cruiser along a stretch of highway about a quarter-mile from the barracks.

Several hours later, men fitting the description of the three were spotted in a stolen car in Altoona, some 70 miles from the scene of the shooting. Police said they cornered the car and engaged in a gun battle with the occupants.

It was during that shootout that Koons was cut down in a hail of gunfire. The two others escaped on foot in heavy fog.

No Clues Yet
To Murders;
Fund Grows

BEDFORD, Pa. (AP) — State police Tuesday abandoned their command post at the scene of the slayings of two elderly women, saying they had no clues in the brutal murders.

Meanwhile, a reward fund established by a local newspaper had received pledges of $4,000 with over $3,500 collected and deposited in a bank Tuesday, a spokesman for the paper said.

A police spokesman said the investigation would continue from the state police barracks here. The command post was set up Dec. 1, following the discovery of the bodies of Marguerite Snyder, 69, and Mary R. Deremer, 66, at the motel service-station complex they operated along U.S. 220 about eight miles south of this Bedford County seat.

Mrs. Snyder, owner of the inn, had been shot three times, police said, and Mrs. Deremer once. Police theorized the motive for the slayings was robbery, because the office cash register had been emptied and the general condition of the motel was a "mess."

The only clue uncovered in the slayings thus far, the spokesman said, was the caliber of the gun used in the killings, and that was being kept secret.

The reward money, known as the "secret witness" fund will be given to anyone providing information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons involved in the murders, said Ned Frear of the Bedford Gazette.

Persons having information were asked to mail it anonymously to the paper's postal box, keeping a corner of the paper on which their letter was written. A six digit number was also to be entered somewhere in the letter.

Following the conviction of the slayers, the person would match his corner to that of the letter containing the information that led to the conviction. They he would collect the $4,000.

"We've only had a handful of responses to the appeal thus far," Frear said, "and none has named any persons who may have been involved in the killings."

Smoked Pork Roast Paired With Apples For Your Holiday Dining Pleasure

PORK AND APPLES, WITH SQUASH AND PEAS add up to a delightful holiday meal

Let the appetizing aroma of baked smoked pork and apples announce that a delicious home-cooked meal is coming to the table. Even in these days of women's liberation, culinary achievement wins acclaim, for carryouts and heat-and-eat dinners just can't compete with Mom's cooking.

Even so, today's homemaker need not labor long in the kitchen. Oven-ready meats, such as modern smoked pork shoulder rolls (butts), need only oven time, not the cook's attention. For dual utilization of the oven, bake a tempting apple accompaniment, Golden Glazed Goldens, for the flavorful smoked pork. Halves of this versatile queen of Washington apples are filled with raisins and slivered almonds and glazed with orange marmalade.

These golden taste-tempters can be topped instead with whipped cream or dairy sour cream and served for dessert.

Good nutrition as well as savory flavor comes to the table with a pork and apple partnership. Pork, both fresh and smoked, provides the high quality protein, vitamins and minerals contributed by all meats, plus extra thiamin. Washington apples have an established reputation for providing maximum fresh apple flavor in recipes and are an ideal low-calorie snack, as well as being the top table companion for pork.

BAKED SMOKED PORK SHOULDER ROLL
1 smoked pork shoulder roll (butt) (2 to 3 pounds)

1/3 cup orange marmalade, if desired

Place smoked pork shoulder roll on rack in open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part and is not resting in fat. Do not add water; do not cover. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) until thermometer registers 170 degrees F. Allow 35 to 40 minutes per pound for roasting. Spread meat with orange marmalade the last 15 to 20 minutes roasting time to glaze.

GOLDEN-GLAZED GOLDENS
4 Washington Golden Delicious apples
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup orange marmalade
2/3 cup golden raisins

3 tablespoons sliced or slivered almonds

Cut apples in halves lengthwise, remove cores and place, cut side down, in large frying pan. Add water and salt, cover and poach over low heat about 8 minutes, just until apples are tender. Remove carefully and place, cut side up, in shallow baking dish. Combine marmalade, raisins and almonds; spoon over apples. Boil the liquid remaining in frying-pan until reduced to about 1/4 cup. Spoon over apples. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 to 15 minutes, until glazed. Yield: 4 to 8 servings.

Nostalgia Returns In Toys This Christmas

NEW YORK (AP) — The nostalgia wave is likely to mean rag dolls, trains and classic games under the Christmas tree this year.

Besides new items like battery-operated Boeing 747's and games based on presidential politics, organized crime and ghetto situations, there appears to be a strong trend to the type of toys that delighted youngsters a score or more years ago.

Rag dolls are a good example. Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy have been around for 53 years, but this year they'll have lots of friends.

Sears Roebuck, which successfully introduced a cloth "Grandma" doll, brought out a companion "Grandpa" doll for 1971. Shindana Toys marketed a Flip Wilson-Geraldine Jones rag doll, named after the television comedian's girl character.

In still another movement to the past, Ideal Toys brought back Tiny Tears, a crying doll which delighted girls in the 1950s.

Strombecker said its Kewpie doll also is enjoying a revival. "It represents the old-fashioned innocence that the majority of American mothers — who remember the doll from their childhood — want to pass on to the kids today," a company spokesman said.

The latest advance in model railroading is the sound of a steam locomotive with the speed of the locomotive. Model Products which revived Lionel trains last year said production was increased 150 per cent in 1971 and 3,000 sets a day were being manufactured to meet demand.

American Publishing Co. offers a series of jigsaw puzzles called Sports Heroes of Yesterday depicting such legendary athletes as Jim Thorpe, Babe Ruth and John L. Sullivan.

Nostalgia, in fact, is a game put out by Creative Communications and Research to test your remembrance of things past.

Monopoly, heading toward the 70-million-mark in sales; Scrabble and fashion dolls such as Barbie and her friends continue to be top sellers across the country.

For those who demand something really new, however, SOUL is a game for teen-agers, highlighting inner city situations; the Godfather game has players trying to gain control of the rackets in New York City; the Next President lets players run primary and general election campaigns for presidential hopefuls and Masterpiece is an art auction game using paintings from the Art Institute of Chicago.

Diana Schramling Lenz Soloist At College Concert

On Sunday, Dec. 5, Poulenc's "Gloria" and Britten's "Saint Nicholas" were performed by the East Stroudsburg State College Concert Choir, Women's Choir, Pocono Boy Singers and Symphony Orchestra.

Soloists for the performance were Diana Schramling Lenz, Soprano and Jay Stenger, Tenor.

Mrs. Lenz, wife of Frederick C. Lenz, Jr., director of the Warren Civic Orchestra and teacher in the Warren School System, has performed at ESSC on several previous occasions. She was soprano soloist in Haydn's "Lord Nelson Mass" and Handel's "Ode on St. Cecilia's Day" and she was featured soloist in Orff's "Carmina Burana" which was performed there last April.

Mrs. Lenz is a resident of Kane and graduated from Mansfield State College where she performed the "Gloria" in 1966. Mr. Lenz, also an MSC graduate, was clarinetist in the orchestra, for performances at both MSC and ESSC.

Jay Stenger is the director of the College Choir at Shepherd's College in West Virginia where he teaches conducting, music appreciation and voice. A graduate of Lycoming College, Mr. Stenger has studied at and served as accompanist for the choir at Chautauqua Institute,

Eleanor Serle Whitney — Millionaire Missionary

By Enid Nemy
Times News Service

Eleanor Serle Whitney is rarely what people expect.

The fashionable and wealthy, who are one part of her life, often describe her as "much too attractive to be a missionary."

On the other hand, the hundreds of student organizations, clubs and religious groups to whom she lectures are frequently surprised when she shows up in colored, textured stockings, mid-length skirts and chunky, chic jewelry.

Mrs. Whitney is both attractive and rich (her divorce from Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney in 1958 resulted in a settlement estimated in excess of $3 million), and she enjoys the advantages those assets provide. She says, however, that the wealth that has freed her from the necessity of earning a living, has also brought certain responsibilities.

"Those to whom much is given, much is expected," she says, explaining her almost full-time involvement in religion and in charitable causes. "It isn't enough to write checks. One must give of oneself. I don't think there should be an idle moment in anyone's life these days."

Mrs. Whitney, who attended MELON ON A TREE That is the way papaya has been described because of its shape, melon-like flavor, and the rich orange color of its flesh. When buying papayas, the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association advises you to look for well-formed fruit with a shape somewhat like a pear. Color should not be green but at least half yellow. The papaya is a low calorie food. To prepare, cut the papaya, remove seeds, and serve cold with a wedge of lemon or lime. A delicious treat.

more than her share of charity balls, luncheons and theater evenings during her 17-year marriage to the industrialist-sportsman, and is still seen at some of the most glamorous social events of any season, doesn't denigrate these methods of fund-raising. But, she says, they are no substitute for personal involvement.

"There are more miserable millionaires in the world than many of the people down there in the flophouses," she said the other day.

"People with money are searching for reality, truth and what they call happiness. Involvement can become one of the most exciting, stimulating and rewarding things in life."

Although Mrs. Whitney had been active in charitable causes for many years, her contribution of time as well as money began in a more serious way in the period when she also discovered the meaning of religion. Although she was a sixth generation Lutheran, she became an Episcopalian when she was married to Whitney.

It was the year before her divorce ("my faith helped me through that") that she met Billy Graham and attended some of his crusades.

"I realized then I had always called myself a Christian, but I had been a pew warmer," she said. "I used to think good Christians were kooky, farout, intellectually retarded and socially inhibited."

Since that time, and what she occasionally refers to as her "rebirth," Mrs. Whitney has spent a major part of each year speaking to service and women's groups and participating in campus and religious meetings.

The subjects vary, but religion always plays some role. Her evangelical zeal, she said, is sometimes disconcerting to acquaintances and friends, a varied group that includes people from the musical world in which she was active before her marriage. She was a concert and opera singer for a short time after her graduation from Florida Southern College.

"Sometimes I go to parties and people will say, 'Eleanor, what is this kick you are on? Can't you find something better to do? You don't look like a sky pilot.'"

The happiness she prefers to call "inner joy" has made her philosophical about such observations.

"Back of that facade and mask we all wear is a gnawing fear, a sense of boredom," she said. "People with money go around bored, and because they are bored, they want more kicks. They stop scoffing when they have some trouble and can't cope with it."

"Golf all day and bridge all night," she continued. "Can you think of anything more deadly? It's unfortunate that some of these people have the wherewithal to keep seeking instead of having to cope with reality. They keep hoping to find fulfillment flitting from new houses to new husbands."

Her own divorce, she said, forced her to come to a conscious decision about her future.

"The normal desire of any feminine woman is to have a home and husband, warmth, affection and the opportunity to help her husband. When a woman has a great upheaval, she can either rush into the arms of the first available man and think that will solve her loneliness and strife, or she can evaluate the demands on her at the moment."

Mrs. Whitney's demands involved her son, Searl, who is now a 24-year-old graduate student. She took a house in Locust Valley, N. Y., near his school, and began rebuilding her life by trying to help others.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the wife who wrote to say her husband was a good man but he never remembered her birthday jogged loose some pleasant memories. My mother had the same problem but she solved it when I was eight years old. I remember the occasion vividly. Mama's birthday was on January 18. On January 17 she tacked a large poster on the door of the kitchen. It read: CLOSED TOMORROW IN HONOR OF MY BIRTHDAY.

Dad got the hint and took the whole family out to dinner on Mama's birthday the next night. She light-heartedly tacked up that poster every year on January 17 and Dad continued to honor the tradition.

Last year Mom died of a heart attack. She was stricken on January 19. Dad said he was sure she waited till after her birthday to die because she so enjoyed that night out. It's a sweet thought, but I half believe it, too. Incidentally, Mom loved your column and so do I. — Winnipeg Reader

DEAR READER: Your mother was a wise woman. She knew that often it is easier and less hazardous to reach one's destination by traveling the back roads rather than the busy highway. Thanks for a heart-warming letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: With the holiday season upon us, it is inevitable that thousands of people who read this will receive a telephone call with the news that some good friend or relative was seriously injured — or killed — in a car accident. They will mourn the loss of innocent people who died in a crash because some drunk was driving.

Please, Ann, put something in your column about drunk driving. Point out that many people think they can handle a car competently after two or three drinks — or even four or five — because they can stand up, talk sense (THEY think it's sense) and see well enough to get the key in the ignition. What an intoxicated person does not realize is that he is no judge of his competence, brilliance or anything else. Thank you. — Hinsdale Reader

DEAR HIN: I'll do more than remind them. I'll tell them where to write for a free Drink-Drive Calculator.

It is a cardboard meter which tells how much a person can safely drink, according to his weight, and how much alcohol he can take within X number of hours before it will affect his ability to drive safely. Governor Richard B. Ogilvie's Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee has made this Calculator available, without charge, to anyone who writes to: Drunk Driving, P.O. box 3007, Springfield, Illinois 62706.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been going steady with a wonderful fellow for nearly five months. Last night Art surprised me with an engagement ring. I can't say I am unhappy (in fact, I am thrilled) but one thing is missing. He has never said, "I love you." Isn't this strange?

Art was engaged to a girl a while back and he gave her a ring just before he left for Vietnam. She cheated on him when he was away so he broke the engagement when he got home. Can this be the reason he can't seem to say, "I love you?" What should I do about it? — Something Missing

Dear S.M.: Yes, something is missing, but the important components are present. He wants to marry you, and I hope you won't be so foolish as to say no because he is unable to verbalize his feelings. Don't make an issue of his hangup. Be patient. I suspect you've guessed the reason.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wrote to you recently and was disturbed by your answer. I wonder if you understood me. I will try again.

I told you my husband died two years ago and I am very lonely. He left me comfortable (not rich). Our house is free of debt and I will have an income for the rest of my life. I asked you to suggest an agency or a mate-matching organization to help me find a respectable man who is also lonely and wants to share my life. You said you do not recommend such organizations, no matter how respectable they might sound, and that even though the literature was endorsed by a clergyman or two it didn't get your stamp of approval. Did you mean it? If so, why? — Skill Lonely

DEAR STILL: You bet your sweet bank balance I meant it. I do not endorse mate-finding agencies, scientific foundations, Lonely Hearts Clubs, — whatever you want to call them. Strangers can be mighty strange and I want no part of such risky business.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze And You — For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Hostesses To Be Used By Amtrak To Lure Passengers From Airlines

N.Y. Times Service

The National Railroad Passenger Corporation, taking a cue from its airline competitors, is about to start trying to lure passengers back to the rails with attractive young hostesses.

With the aid of Continental Airlines, Amtrak began last week to train 24 young women in grooming, passenger relations, first aid and other skills designed to make travel more pleasant.

The two-week program is part of a broader effort under which Continental will eventually train 1,250 rail employees in passenger handling and railroad operating techniques.

The group at Continental's training center ranges in age from 20 to 27 and includes five registered nurses, one woman with a Master's Degree in psychology, another with a Master's Degree in sociology, several former models, former hostesses from the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad, and the former social secretary of Hugh Hefner, publisher of Playboy Magazine. The starting pay for most is $600 a month.

Although a flight to Rome might seem more exciting than a train ride to Cleveland, the women have shown little interest in careers with the airlines. And most seem offended by any comparison with stewardesses.

Only one of the girls has ever been a stewardess—three months for United Air Lines—and they say they see their jobs as responsible positions that go far beyond serving meals and saying friendly good-bys.

They are excited by the newness of Amtrak and talk of a chance to "make a contribution." The kind of contribution is not specifically defined, but rather couched in idealistic terms of a desire to be in contact with people they can help and a romanticized love for the nation and its history of railroading.

"We're not going to be pretty-face kiewpie dolls," explained Christie Koontz, who is a stunning blonde from Florida. "Our main job is to talk to passengers and find out what changes they want made," she said.

The primary function of the hostesses will be to serve as liaison between Amtrak and the public. They will relay passenger complaints and compliments to Amtrak through daily reports that are computerized and evaluated.

The job description calls for them to provide helping hands for increased passenger comfort, especially for the elderly, mothers with children, or children traveling alone. The hostesses are expected to be congenial sources of information on ticketing, scenery, or how to survive once a destination is reached, and initially as experts at explaining delays and arranging for passengers who have missed their connections.

Barb Demming, a brunette with a master's degree in psychology, has been riding trains all fall. She has made "over 1,000 suggestions" for improved service, which have been especially commended by Amtrak. They include menu changes and lower food prices, free coffee on morning intercity commuter trains, movies and "good-time hours" on longer trips, and more frequent stops in college towns.

The Seaboard's Florida Special for the last seven years has employed hostesses who have presented fashion shows and supervised movies and games. Amtrak's representatives on the 23½-hour trip will incorporate some entertaining of the passengers into their regular duties as a prototype for extension to other lines later.

The number of hostesses will be increased to 50 after a second training course in January. They will be based in major cities across the country and will change routes periodically, although the emphasis will initially be in the northeast corridor, where one Amtrak spokesman said, "We'll have to make it or not."

Beaty Students Receive Interesting Replies To 'Career Unit' Letters Of Inquiry

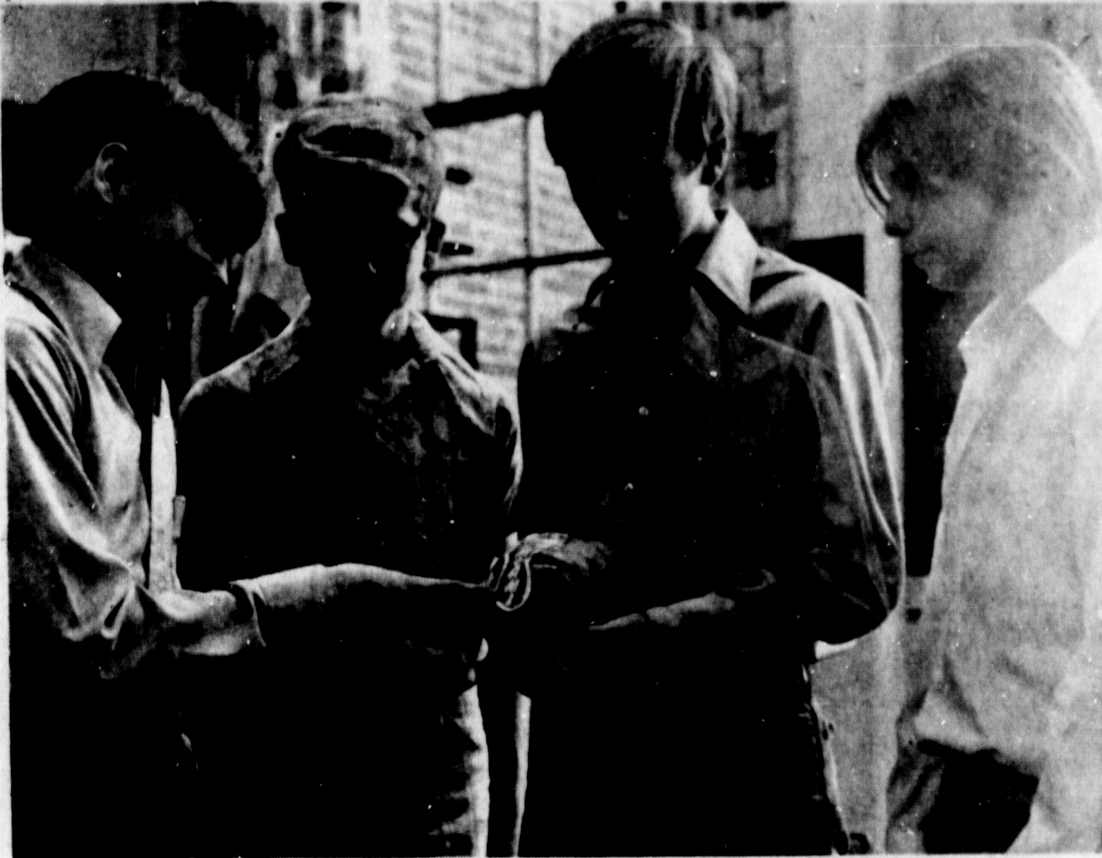

CAROL HUGHES READS ABOUT ATLANTA
from a first-hand source (Photos-Betz)

A plea for information from Chambers of Commerce throughout the country by ninth grade students at Beatty Junior High School has brought some interesting results, according to Martha Peed, a ninth grade English teacher.

The project began as a Career Unit in the history department of the school, Miss Peed said.

The ninth grade students were studying careers, and because supplemental material was scarce, the English department was asked to help the students write for more information.

Letters were sent to large cities all over the country, asking for Yellow Page listings of occupational opportunities, for economic conditions of the cities, and information on schools of higher education and technical schools in the areas.

NINTH GRADERS INSPECT COCONUT FROM MIAMI
Rick Stachowiak, Chuck Devore, Jim Tuley, Don McCulla

Most of the communities responded by sending brochures, maps, Yellow Pages taken from telephone books, and personal letters from public relations agents of the communities.

The city of Miami, Florida, not only sent information, but a large coconut, along with some written material about the coconut, and its uses.

They also told the students they would send a coconut to any teacher in the school who requested one. At a postage cost of 80 cents each, that could run as high as $60 in postage if each of the 75 teachers in the junior high requested a coconut.

Atlanta, Georgia, answered Carol Hughes' letter of inquiry with an envelope full of brochures and other information, and also sent a week's complimentary issue of each of the Atlanta newspapers.

Judging by the response to the students' requests, it would appear there is more to learn in school than that which simply comes out of textbooks.

Soup For The Holiday

A bright and light, hot soup set up with handled cups in the living room for guests to serve themselves does more than welcome warmly. It also frees the hostess-cook for getting everything for the festive main course on the dining table at one time. Such a soup should be light-bodied and the more delicate and enticing the taste, the better. This one is light red in color, with bits of green. Its "guess-what" flavor comes from caramelizing 4 teaspoons of white granulated sugar in a heavy saucepan on low heat. Stir until sugar melts and turns lightly amber. Remove from heat to blend in 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Slowly stir in 3 cups hot water with 4 chicken bouillon cubes (or equal amount of canned or strained, homemade broth) and ½ cup tomato juice. Bring to boil; add ¼ cup each of chopped pimiento and green pepper. Correct seasoning, if necessary, with salt or sugar and simmer about 5 minutes. Makes 8 half-cup portions or 4 cups of soup.

This recipe makes a soup to cheer on other occasions also. Particularly the day after a meal of roast turkey, capon, or chicken. Then the broth base can be made from the bones left from carving, thriftily simmered with pieces of onion, celery, carrot, a little sugar to bring out their flavors, and water; cooked down and strained.

Rev. Bert Jones To Be At Youngville Church

The Rev. Bert Jones, nationally known for seven long-play record albums of organ music under the Zondervan label, is to be the guest organist on Thursday, Dec. 16 at 7:30 p.m., at the Youngville Free Methodist church. The special service is to consist of a series of seven original medleys incorporating 21 favorite carols and hymns in descriptive tone paintings, telling the story of Christmas.

Jones uses a wide variety of unusual organ tones and techniques to achieve his musical interpretations, which he calls "organ paintings." He is director, producer and organist of the family devotional radio broadcast, "A Visit With The Joneses", aired since 1948 in the Pittsburgh area, and heard locally on Sundays at 1 p.m.

He visited the local church several weeks ago, to play at the dedication service for the organ, which was newly installed at that time.

Spirited Soups

Carry-along soups and stews will acquire a new personality by adding either a dry white wine or sherry in part for water. Home economists suggest supplementing such a meal with slices of Italian bread and cheese.

A Book For Christmas - Always A Welcomed Gift

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Time was when a Christmas gift book was considered a stocking stuffer — a little something extra. But many books of interest to homemakers in our "how-to" society may become the piece de resistance of Santa's bag.

Ones on needlepoint, knitting, beaded flowers, organic foods cooking, antiques, and home furnishings are among those with sure-fire woman appeal. Here are some:

"Bouquets From Beads" by Virginia Osterland tells how to use beaded flowers in Oriental and Western style flower arrangements.

"Do-It-All-Yourself Needlepoint" by Joan Scobey and Lee Parr McGrath has a wide range of needlepoint information, including how to go about choosing your own design. Direct tracing and composition are explained if one chooses to work with a pattern from a wallpaper, fabric or poster.

"The Large-Type Knitting Book of Babies and Childrens Clothes" is touted by the author, Joan Rattner Heilman, as being the first of its kind. In addition to the big type, the book is printed on special paper which increases the visual possibilities of the dark type even more, and its design, soft cover and large size pages were made so the book will stay flat.

"How to Stay 10 Pounds Slimmer" by Edith Miller Berman and Charlotte Leighton tells how to maintain that 10 pound loss you worked for. It begins with a basic diet based on one developed by the New York Board of Health Obesity Clinic.

"Antiques You Can Decorate With" by George Grotz is again available for people who want a guide to antiques and their prices.

"Color in Decoration" by Jose Wilson and Arthur Leaman is one of the really fine books on color because of its more than 100 color photographs obtained from the best design sources.

"The Edible Wild" by Berndt Berglund and Clare E. Bolsby is a great book for the conservation-minded woman. Fifty wild plants provide edible food, and there are illustrations and recipes for goodies like chickweed pancakes and cattail stew.

"Out of the Stockpot" by William J. Dunn is an ideal book for the woman who has become vitamin conscious. Dunn tells how to squeeze every last vitamin out of foods and to use the stock in soups, sauces, stews.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

The bidding:
South West North East
3♥ 3♠ 6♥ Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠. Altho South's vulnerable opening three heart bid was not culled from any text book with which we are acquainted and laid the basis for his partner's jump to six hearts—South managed to emerge with a profit on the deal by uncovering one of the rarest coups of bridge—the smother play.

West opened the king of spades which was ruffed by South with the deuce of hearts. A trump was returned and when West followed with the five, the queen was played from dummy—on which East showed out, discarding a diamond. Altho the trump finesse had succeeded, prospects did not appear favorable, inasmuch as the heart king was well guarded and a club loser seemed unavoidable.

A second spade was trumped with the four of hearts and dummy was reentered with the king and ace of diamonds and the king of clubs, to ruff out three more spades, with the six, eight and nine of hearts, as East discarded diamonds and West helplessly followed suit. A club was led to the ace for declarer's 10th trick to produce the following position with three cards to go:

The eight of clubs was played from dummy, East put up the queen, South followed with the seven and West with the five. Now, on East's diamond return, declared ruffed in with the ten of hearts and West was helpless. If he overruled with the king, North would cover with the ace and the jack of hearts would take the final trick. If West underdressed, on the other hand, the final outcome would be the same.

West's king of hearts was smothered and his trump trick vanished into the air.

It's America's most popular! Why?

We think it's excellence of product.

Years and years ago, when we decided to bake

Jane Parker Fruit Cake, we also decided to bake the best.

That's why Jane Parker Fruit Cake was then and is today over 2/3 fruits and nuts.

Just enough cake to hold together the bounty of imported and domestic cherries, pineapple from the Far East, citron from the Caribbean, sun-drenched raisins from California and meaty pecans from the South.

We think, too, that value has made it popular.

IMAGINE, THE 5-LB. CAKE COSTS ONLY $4.99.

That's dollars less than you might expect to pay for such a fine fruit cake.

Now you know why Jane Parker Fruit Cake is America's most popular.

One other thing you should know: You can buy it only at A&P.

P.S. Wouldn't it make a great gift for someone?

Highway Patrol Goes To Sea

By Betty Rice

The duties of the Pennsylvania State Police are varied, ranging from traffic control and criminal investigation to motor vehicle accidents and relays. They answer their fair share of nuisance calls such as a complaint from an irate mother who wants some action taken when her small son is hung in effigy by a playmate.

Betty Rice

But, unlike the California Highway Patrol, they are spared one type of duty. On the west coast, the Highway Patrol has men on duty far out in the Pacific Ocean. The patrol officers visit Navy ships to conduct classes for incoming sailors on the hazards of California streets and highways.

Spokesmen for one Navy force and the Cruiser Destroyer Force, Pacific, credit the program with reducing traffic deaths among their personnel by 60 per cent and injuries by 20 per cent during 1968, when a study was made of its impact. The program began in 1963.

An information and education officer for the highway patrol in San Diego and a member of the five-man "Ships at Sea" squad, said officers usually join the ships in Pearl Harbor. They can

Safety Agency

Cites Firms

For Violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the first six months of operation the new federal job-safety agency has cited 60 per cent of the firms it inspected for alleged health or safety violations, the Labor Department said Monday.

Concentrating its fledgling efforts in high-hazard firms and industries, it inspected 9,300 establishments and issued 5,536 citations calling for $361,692 in proposed fines, most of which have been paid without an appeal by the violators.

In addition the department said in a report sent to Congress Monday, another 20 per cent of the firms were found to have minor hazards that did not result in citations. Only 20 per cent were found to be violation-free.

Although President Nixon signed the nation's first comprehensive job-safety law last Dec. 29, it was not until April 28 that the Labor Department set up the Occupational Safety and Health Administration to enforce it. Safety standards were issued a month later, and businesses were given until Aug. 27 before actual enforcement began. As of Nov. 1, the OSHA had hired only 313 inspectors of an authorized force of 500.

The law covers 4.1 million businesses employing 60 million workers, the report said.

Top enforcement priority goes to investigation of deaths. Asst. Secretary of Labor George C. Guenther, in a briefing for newsmen Monday, said a OSHA inspector was on the scene of last weekend's Port Furion tunnel blast, in which at least 28 men died, less than four hours after the explosion. He said he did not know whether any OSHA man had inspected the tunnel site beforehand.

Next, inspection priority goes to employees' complaints of unsafe conditions. The report said OSHA has received 868 complaints, more than half of them concerning health matters rather than safety, and has acted on all valid ones.

The third priority is a concentrated attack on five target industries selected because they have the worst safety record.

The target industries are longshoring, with 69.9 injuries per million man-hours; roofing and sheet metal, 43; meat and meat products, 38.5; manufacturers of mobile homes, campers and snowmobiles, 37.6; and lumbering, 36.1. The average for all manufacturing in the United States is 14.8.

In addition to the three priority areas for enforcement, the government plans to inspect a random cross-section of establishments of all types and sizes in all parts of the country.

The new law has stirred up criticism by both management and labor.

Employers contend that some of the standards they are being forced to meet actually make no contribution to safety, and slow down production.

Labor complaints argue that there are too few inspectors. It also is unhappy about OSHA's ruling that state-of-safety programs do not have to allow union representatives to accompany safety inspectors on tours of plants.

transfer from ship to ship en route to California. Often they're the first people from the states that these sailors have seen in a long time. Their attendance at the classes given is compulsory, but from their attitude toward the highway squad, it appears more as though they volunteered to come and hear what the highway patrol has to say.

The spokesman added that walking around a ship after a traffic safety class is often difficult since the sailors come up to a person and get him into discussions ranging from advice on how to register a car to what they should do about an old traffic ticket—or how to join the highway patrol.

Highway patrol officers have visited 36 Navy ships this year and talked to more than 30,000 sailors.

The most recent cumulative figures for the joint Navy-highway patrol program show that it was presented to 240,000 men aboard 178 returning Pacific Fleet ships between 1963 and 1969.

This interesting information was forwarded by a Warren native, Horton H. Halsted of Sacramento, Calif., a one-time member of the California Highway Patrol.

The drug problem persists in Warren County and elsewhere. You can argue whether or not smoking marijuana leads to the use of other drugs, or whether the high cost of buying "pot" causes other crimes, but this article from a Texas college newspaper should shake up every user or potential user of marijuana and the parents both for possession of marijuana.

This article poses the question: Did he lose anything when he was convicted? "All he lost was the right to vote, the right to own a gun and the right to run for public office. He lost the opportunity to ever become a licensed doctor, dentist, CPA, engineer, lawyer, architect, realtor, osteopath, physical therapist, private detective, pharmacist, school teacher, barber, funeral director, masseur or stock broker. He can never get a job where he has to be bonded or licensed. He can't work for the city, county or federal government. HE LOST A GREAT DEAL!"

TYPICAL HOLIDAY GIVERS

Girl Scout Troop 446 of Home Street School is typical of numerous troops throughout Warren County that elected to undertake projects to make Christmas happier for less fortunate youngsters. The girls made toys which were donated Tuesday to

Forest County Extension Staff To Attend Workshop

Members of the Forest County Cooperative Extension Service will participate in a special Environmental Education Conference on The Pennsylvania State University campus, December 14-16, to gain a deeper understanding of ecological principles and plan additional educational approaches to help solve many of society's problems.

County Agent William R. Wallace points out that the three-day workshop is part of a long-range extension service effort to intensify ways in which to assume more positive roles in educational programs aimed at resource management and environmental improvement.

Those attending the conference include William R. Wallace, county agent and Nancy C. Shoup, home economist.

Seventeen subjects, all relating to environmental quality, will be covered during the three days. Nationally-recognized experts and speakers in the field of resource management and public policy will participate in the conference.

This in-service training is a phase of the public service activity of Penn State's Environmental Quality Program funded by the Rockefeller Foundation.

"This training will provide the extension staff with technical information and program suggestions so they will have more complete background in building environmental education programs on a continuing basis," said Dr. Thomas B. King, associate extension service director.

Subjects to be presented include population trends, home environment as it affects the family, residential land use planning, improving air quality, understanding the need for sewage treatment, managing solid wastes, water quality, and legislative proposals reflecting public concerns about environmental quality.

Tionesta Gets Action On Pollution Problem

TIONESTA — Several residents of this borough who petitioned State Senator Richard C. Frame of Franklin to inquire about the possibilities of abating a smoke and air pollution problem at the Penn-DOT maintenance building here have been assured by C.P. Saupp, District 1-0 engineer at Franklin that "we are aware of the smoke problem."

In a letter to Frame, Saupp said "land has been purchased in Tionesta Township and plans for a new maintenance headquarters have been completed." Saupp added that when the building is completed there will be no pollution as the boilers will be gas fired.

Saupp pointed out the building had been placed in the 1971-72 capital budget, which still remains to be approved by the state senate.

The petition originated with L.A. Haller, who operates a business nearby, at the request of residents who have been bothered by clouds of billowing coal smoke and ash from the highway building.

Titusville Youth Wounded By Gunshot

Mark Sampson, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Sampson, 515 N. Washington st., was wounded in his foot when a gun being unloaded accidentally discharged.

Police said Sampson, his father and three brothers had been hunting in the Enterprise area and were unloading their guns prior to getting into their car.
